How to Start a Panic
Russia's Sincerity

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

Could anything be more humiliating to this nation, a republic, than that the utterly broken, humiliated and half-starved people of Germany must pay in the current year five hundred million dollars in gold for the cost of keeping an American army on German soil?

What does this country fear from Germany? What good is done by our men kept there, at the expense of a bankrupt nation, when they might be doing useful work here in America?

It would have been mean enough had we held out our hands and demanded five hundred million dollars from Germany to put in our pockets. But deliberately to waste that vast sum and make the Germans pay while our soldiers write about half-fed women and children, is cold-blooded cruelty.

Talking neurotic nonsense about a league for perpetual peace and robbing a helpless, starving nation by forcing an army upon it, to parade, spend money and do nothing, constitute very nice "109 per cent. Americanism."

"Polish women joining army to help repel Bolsheviki. Poland in peril of invaders." That is the news heading.

Russians are pushing ahead, of course. Everything has been done by the Allies and by this country to consolidate the millions of Russia and make them fight together.

American officials that ought to be impeached have furnished weapons and money to be used against Russia, a nation with which we are not at war and with which we have no quarrel—except that the revolution refused to pay the money American speculators lent to the Czar on a note-shaving basis.

After our Civil War the North did not pay the money that England lent to the South, buying Southern bonds. What would the North have said if England had supplied money and arms to our enemies to fight us?

Mrs. Oliver P. Belmont, able woman and good fighter, wants a woman's party. She would be a good leader for that party, for she knows something about the high cost of living. When we was Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, residing at Newport, she used to say, "I am sure I don't know how the poor people live when they have to PAY for everything. I send my washing to New York to be done. It goes and comes by express and I don't have to pay any express charges. I have a pass for all such things." Mrs. Belmont could unfold an interesting tale of American life. She should run for office.

The Federal Reserve Bank has approved usury and set aside the laws of New York and other States against usury by raising the discount rate. That bank should study the financiers of Afghanistan.

In that land of happy financiers, according to the magazine Asia, when the native wants to celebrate his marriage and "feed the pigeons," which means entertaining guests, he must borrow money. The rate of interest is one anna per month for every rupee lent. There are sixteen annas to a rupee, so the Afghanistan interest rate is 75 per cent. a year. That is ten times better than the Federal Reserve Bank rate. So the bank still has some distance to go in the game of choking American business enterprise by shutting off credits.

Switzerland, absolutely responsible, but a victim of war conditions, borrows twenty-five millions in this country, payable in dollars, and offers 8 per cent. interest.

The government will have to stop this peddling of usurious foreign loans in the United States, or all the money in this country will be sent abroad to work in Europe.

American business men will be unable to borrow, to employ labor or to extend business. The Federal Bank, that was supposed to make panics impossible, and these usurious foreign loans combined may actually give us the panic that would be impossible under ordinary conditions.

The United States has lifted the ban and permits Americans to trade with Russia "at their own risk."

If the administration had listened to William Boyce Thompson, an intelligent, able, honest American business man, upon his return from Russia, a good deal of nonsense and loss might have been avoided.

For the honor of Russia, it must be said that her government resented and rejected the insulting proposition that Lenine's government should give up all propaganda, or, in other words, swallow its beliefs, for the sake of trade.

Sincerity is the life-blood of a nation. If Russia had denied her beliefs, right or wrong, she would not deserve to survive.

What would this nation, after having beaten England and established a republic, have said, had we been told, "You may trade with main Europe, but your citizens must keep their republican ideas to themselves"?

If a nation of three or four millions would naturally have resented such a command 140 years ago you can hardly expect a nation of two hundred and fifty millions to swallow it now.

THOUSANDS SEEKING WORK

Mill Workers on Enforced 'Vacation' Rush to Boston and Other Cities

While 15,000 employes of the American Woolen Company, in Lawrence and other cities, were today added to the many other thousands of New Englanders already out of work or on part time as a result of conditions in shoes and textiles, there was no complaint from the workers and no fear anywhere of a call for assistance.

One result of the widespread "vacation" or part-time policy of employers was a rush of unskilled workers to Boston and other cities. Another result is evident in the report (official) that since the first of the year 4,341 New Englanders have obtained passports to other countries, as compared with 1,715 in the corresponding period last year.

Lawrence, Haverhill, New Bedford, Manchester and other shoe and cotton centres report that the older and more experienced workers, having taken good care of greatly increased earnings during the latter part of the "war" period, have gone off to nearby lake resorts or taken their families to the beach. It is generally believed

First Full Facts of Barney's Vacation

Herman L. Barney's narrow escape from a raiding party in a Cambridge barn, his final hours hereabouts before his first flight, and the beginning of that flight are described in today's instalment of the Boston American's exclusive story of Barney's escape from State prison.

Barney had now spent two days in hiding in Cambridge homes, the first in a place of his own selection, and the second in a house selected by the leaders of the gang.

The third day, May 28, Barney received a message which indicated that the authorities had a tip as to his whereabouts, and the gang decided he must forego the luxuries afforded by the homes of his friends.

It was decided that a deserted barn in Cambridge would afford a safe shelter for a time and to this Barney repaired, by order of the gang.

When he reached there, however, and noted the absence of a more clean bed than that afforded by straw he declined to lay down, or even to try to sleep in so untidy a place, and spent the night sitting on an old box —which he carefully dusted off with his handkerchief.

RUNAWAY STOPPED BY SOUTH BOSTON OFFICER

A runaway horse, galloping through the crowded streets of South Boston, was brought to a stop near the D street gymnasium by Patrolman Michael J. Curran after a spirited chase today. The horse and a heavy wagon, owned by P. Cocuran of 371 D street, were driven to Haynes' horses where [illegible] way, where the driver took the bridle off to be repaired. The horse became frightened and, dashing upon the sidewalk with the wagon, swung into D street. The policeman gave chase, shouting warning to children and others in the way, and finally overtook the runaway.

Constable Who Shot Man Sent to Jail

Thomas Cannizzaire, court interpreter and constable, was found guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon by the South Boston Court today and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

Cannizzaire was with Patrolman DeGiorio the morning of July 4 when the latter dispersed a crowd of young men at Broadway and I street. Although the young men were obeying the patrolman, witnesses who included the officer himself, said Cannizzaire followed them with injunctions to move faster. Having a permit to carry a revolver, the constable drew it and fired. The bullet grazed the leg of John Foley, one of the group.

Patrolman Michael Greeley arrived to see the first shot fired and ordered Cannizzaire to put away the weapon. But the constable fired a second time. He was then placed under arrest.

Dublin, July 9.—A "police revolt" was reported from County Kerry today. Members of the Royal Irish constabulary were said to have disobeyed orders to make political raids and conduct searches.

Policemen attached to the Killarney and Cahirciveen barracks refused to perform any but ordinary police duties and declared that they would not "associate with soldiers in dirty work," according to reports received here.

The "revolting" constables originally intended to resign in a body, but delayed action pending a conference with the authorities. Several liaison

OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE

By SIMON SWIG, Vice-President, Tremont Trust Co.

A savings deposit is sacred. It represents toil and thrift, and often sacrifice. It should draw interest from the time of deposit to the time of withdrawal, and should be secure from loss.

Legislation alone can provide for this. The law which prohibits the payment of interest on savings from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal should be repealed, and savings deposits should be guaranteed by the state.

Under the present law, a savings deposit is better than a certificate of deposit, or other time deposit, yet it is not all it would be with the guaranty of the state, and with the privilege of drawing interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. It is better than any other kind of deposit because the law requires savings to be invested only on high grade loans and investments; and has back of it a stockholder's liability, and is otherwise protected.

While a savings deposit, fortified in this manner, is better than other kinds of deposit, yet, in view of its sacred nature, it should be made secure against all contingencies.

Guaranty funds of banks do not afford full and complete protection. They are no stronger than the banks which invest them. Investments involve the human equation. Human judgment and virtues are not always to be relied upon.

A strong bank is strong without a guaranty fund; a weak bank is weak with a guaranty fund. The best guaranty is none too good for a savings deposit, and the best is the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The state guaranty of savings deposits is will add to the prosperity of the state by attracting and saving millions that are now hidden away or placed in wildcat and get-rich quick schemes. These millions would be invested by banks in trade, industry, commerce and finance.

I propose that the state, following out its policy of protection, guarantee savings deposits. In a bill drafted by me and filed with the clerk of the house of representatives provision is made for such a guarantee without expense or loss to the state.

Some banking interests will say a state guaranty law is dangerous. This is what they said about the bill to permit banks to pay interest monthly, and this is what they said when banks began to pay interest at the rate of 5%. Anything that favors depositors they brand as dangerous. I suppose they would rather keep control of the guaranty funds rather than let the state control them.

The guaranty law such as I propose retains the laws that guard and restrict the investments and loans of savings deposits, and keeps the officers and stockholders to strict responsibility. The laws governing savings deposits cannot be too strict; and under a state guaranty law are bound to be even stricter than those we now have.

The payment of interest on savings deposits from the time of deposit to the time of withdrawal is a further application of the square deal in banking. A bank charges interest on a loan from the time it is made until it is repaid. Likewise a bank should pay interest on a savings deposit from the time of deposit until the time of withdrawal, for, practically speaking, a deposit is a loan to the bank.

A bank loans and invests deposits. These deposits earn its income. The depositors should have a fair share in the profits, and a bank should not have the use of money for a number of days or months without fully paying for it.

A depositor saves to have something to fall back on, and to earn something by his thrift, toil and sacrifice. A bank should guard these savings and pay a fair return on them, for all the time it has had them. A deposit made in July should not have to lie in a bank until September or December to draw interest.

Some banks pay interest from the time of deposit to the time of withdrawal. Such deposits are not savings deposits and are not invested under our strict savings bank laws, and have not the protection that savings deposits have.

A savings deposit should be secured from all loss that the protection of the law can give. Even though it be a protected deposit, it should draw interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. The law I ask will give this.

that the vacation time will last about a month. Few were sorry to have it come.

The closing of the mills of the big woolen company came according to schedule. Two reasons assigned are "business conditions" and "lack of orders." Some say the reopening will not come until after Labor Day. The official announcement was that the closing is for an "indefinite" period.

At Haverhill, the C. H. Hayes power plant resumed work after the holiday shut-down and power was restored to several factories. Other power plants will not start for another week and shoe factories in the Washington and River street districts remained idle.

It has developed that the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association, composed of twelve firms, had a meeting on Tuesday which proved to be a stormy affair. Manufacturers wanted to start their factories with new orders while other desired to keep the shoe workers on the street.

Before an adjournment was reached there was an open rupture between the two factions and the union officials predict that as soon as the power plants finish their mid-Summer repairs, a break will occur and some of the manufacturers will start business on the old terms.

Denial of the report that Immigration Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington had been asked to act as mediator between shoe workers and their employers in the "Salem" district came today from the manufacturers. The district takes in Beverly, Marblehead, Peabody and Danvers. A situation of general throughout this territory, has thrown 8,000 hands out of work.

The manufacturers feel that the controversy settled as far as they are concerned and that unless the workers returned at the wage schedules in effect when they quit, the plants would remain closed indefinitely. Commissioner Skeffington's services as mediator might have been requested by the shoe unions, but no such request had come from them, they stated emphatically.

UNSEATING OF REED PROBED

Senate Committee to Determine if Campaign Money Was Used Against Him

St. Louis, July 9.—Whether boodle was used to "roll" Senator James A. Reed in Missouri and San Francisco was probed today by the Senate investigating committee, looking into political campaign expenditures, as an aftermath of the Democratic national convention.

Senator Reed, a member of the investigating committee and who was barred as a delegate to the Democratic national convention by San Francisco by the credentials committee upon recommendation of the Missouri State Democratic committee, said he would not participate in the inquiry. In this he followed the lead of Cox, admitting his disqualification upon the basis of personal interest.

Another subject for probe in St. Louis will be the charge that Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer expended $5,000 to further his campaign in St. Louis alone.

"GEORGIA PEACH" TESTIFIES.

The committee continued its session in Chicago after digging down into Georgia political affairs with reference to the Republican party organization negro vote there and an alleged slush fund. Senators Kenyon, Reed and Spencer, conducting the probe, then left for here.

Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro orator, known as "Lowden's Georgia Peach," was the star witness. His testimony revealed an expenditure of from $65,000 to $70,000 for General Wood in the Georgia primary campaign, while $20,000 in Lowden money was spent by one agent alone.

In addition to the thousands in cash, the Wood forces under direction of former Postmaster-General Frank Hitchcock "promised postmasterships galore" to Wood converts. While present postmasters, Federal agents, revenue men and other payrollers were lined up, the Democratic side for Attorney-General Palmer.

DISFRANCHISED BY FORCE.

The negro's apparent purpose was to "expose Democratic barbarities" in his home State and to justify the lavish campaign expenditures by Republican missionaries.

Johnson charged that Senator Hoke Smith, Tom Watson and Thomas Hardwick of Georgia "have put the genius of their lives into the task of preventing voting by the negroes." He said that about "85 per cent of the negroes in Georgia are outrageously disfranchised, not by law, but by brute force."

He cited, as an instance, a negro who in 1888 voted for Harrison for President.

"That man hasn't been heard of since," he declared.

Japanese Are Shown Boston 'Culture'

Boston upholds its traditional fame as the "Hub of the Universe" so far as learning goes.

Today three Japanese seamen from the cruiser Kasuga, on their way to the Charlestown Navy Yard, lost their bearings and became stranded in the maze of vehicles, cross streets and confusion in Scollay square. They appealed to a traffic policeman with all the flowery politeness of the Nippon empire to set them aright, but to no avail. A curious crowd gathered.

Then a Boston business man nonchalantly strolled upon the scene. Taking the situation in at a glance, he introduced himself in perfectly intelligible Japanese and set them on the right course.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont Urges Platform Attacking Existing Evils at Root

New York, July 9.—Immediate formation of a woman's party was urged here by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who declared herself disgusted with the acts of the Republican and Democratic conventions. In her statement, Mrs. Belmont said:

"I want to suggest that after wise comment and careful deliberation the women of America form a powerful woman's party.

"This does not mean that the party will back only women candidates. It will back the best available candidates, women and men.

"The purpose of this party will be to write and execute a platform which will attack existing evils at the root, and not on the surface; to make possible free expression of opinion by every member of the Commonwealth, and have the individual voice count, to eliminate the boss system, which represents the interests of the few to the detriment of the masses."

ALUMNI RESENT MEADS' CHARGE

Chicago Leader Says Demand of Slayer's Father That Hopkins Resign Is Preposterous

Hanover, N. H., July 9.—Members of the Dartmouth College alumni in Chicago are aroused over the charges that Dartmouth is a nest of bootleggers made there by Albert H. Meads of La Grange, Ill., on his return from the college where his son, Robert T. Meads, shot and killed Henry E. Maroney on June 20.

Basing his contention on the charges, Meads had demanded the resignation of President Ernest M. Hopkins of the college, who alleged laxity in the bootlegging he blames for the act of his son.

"IS GROSS EXAGGERATION."

President John C. Reddington of the Dartmouth Alumni Association of Chicago wired President Ernest M. Hopkins of the college, against whom charges of incompetency are levied by Meads, informing him of the association.

"I attended commencement at Dartmouth last month," said Reddington, according to a dispatch from Chicago, "and there I heard an entirely different account of the affair than that of Mr. Meads. Of course, a demand that President Hopkins resign his position because of this unfortunate occurrence is preposterous. Very likely among 1,700 students, young and full of life, it is only natural to expect a few that would engage in that sort of thing.

"But 100 is gross exaggeration. I expect a telegram from President Hopkins concerning which will doubtless clear it up. There are 72 Chicago boys expecting to enter Dartmouth next Fall and such publicity, unless effectively denied, will give the institution a black eye."

SAYS 100 CASES ON FILE.

"I went to Hanover, N. H., to help my son the moment I heard of the regrettable affair," said Attorney Meads in his statement.

"What I found out about conditions was so revolting as to be almost unbelievable. There are on file in the office of County Solicitor Noonan of Grafton County, the depositions of more than 100 students, in which they state that they either engaged in or knew about the sale of liquor. To see an intoxicated student on the campus is a common thing."

MAY WILKES, NOTED ACTRESS, DEAD AT 64

New York, July 9.—May Wilkes, aged sixty-four, an actress since she was thirteen, is dead, according to Fund Home on Staten Island. She will be buried by the organization on Monday. As a child, the actress came to New York from Bangor, her birthplace. Among the notables with whom she acted were James O'Neil, Charles Frohman and James W. Collier. She retired while with a Washington stock company in 1915.

the allied plan for the disarmament of Germany granting six months for the reduction of the German armed forces to 100,000 men and the destruction of German war materials in accordance with the terms of the treaty of Versailles.

The German delegation, headed by Chancellor Konstantin Fehrenbach, signed the allied disarmament proposal at 11:30 o'clock. The Germans made verbal protest against any occupation of the Ruhr district by the allied troops, on the ground it would paralyze German industry.

According to the terms of the allied plan drawn up by Marshal Foch and Field - Marshal Wilson of the British General Staff, the German government must reduce its armed forces to 150,000 by December 31, complete the reduction to 100,000 in the following three months.

GERMAN CABINET DECIDES.

The German Cabinet met in Berlin at 8 o'clock and the decision to sign was soon reached. The decision was then flashed to Spa by telegraph. The German delegates were instructed by the Cabinet to "make certain verbal observations to the allies."

General von Seeckt, commander of the German government forces, met a group of allied experts to discuss the trial of German war criminals. The generals declared that the delay in bringing the war offenders to trial was due to the failure of the allies to forward specific charges.

Herr Von Gessler, the German Minister of Defence, protested violently against the Germans' decision to sign. He left the conference room alone, ahead of his colleagues.

"Will you resign?" asked a correspondent.

Von Gessler glared at the questioner without replying. He shouldered his way through the group of correspondents, entered his motor car and drove to his hotel.

HAS 7,850 AIRPLANES.

In the event of rejection the allies threatened to extend their military occupation of Germany beyond the present zone of occupation.

A formal plea for military aid for Poland was laid before Premier Lloyd George and Premier Millerand by Premier Grabski of Poland. Poland has plenty of guns, munitions and airplanes, but is outnumbered by the Russians in men, Premier Grabski said.

"Reports regarding the situation in the East are exaggerated," declared the Polish statesman. "We are now engaged in raising a reserve army which will go a long way toward stopping the Russian Bolshevik. We have enough munitions; we have the Russians beaten in airplanes and we have enough artillery, but we are outnumbered. The situation is not grave."

NOT SEEKING INDEMNITY.

Premier Grabski denied that Poland was pressing the allies for her share of indemnity.

"We consider that secondary to military aid," said the Premier. "We prefer such nations as France be compensated first."

Premier Grabski, asked concerning the report that Germany is pressing the allies to reopen the discussions regarding the future of Danzig, said: "The allies will not discuss Danzig with Germany. The peace treaty settled the status of that city. Germany cannot gain a revision of the treaty on that point."

Premier Grabski refused to resent the nature of the aid Poland was seeking from the allies until he had discussed it with the allied premiers.

Allies Will Not Discuss Cancelling Debt to U. S.

Washington, July 9.—There will be no discussion of possible cancellation of the ten billion dollar war debt to the United States at the financial conference to be held in Brussels the 18th, according to Secretary of the Treasury Houston.

It is presumed that reparations and cancellations of war debts be not discussed at the conference," said Secretary Houston today.

Three financial representatives of this country, to be appointed by Secretary Houston, will represent the United States at the Brussels conference, it was announced. Secretary Houston refused to predict who the three men would be, but indicated that he would make the announcement possibly within the next few days.

The flat assertion that no consideration of cancellation of the huge allied war debt would be permitted was coupled with the statement that the United States would only be unofficially represented. The American representatives will have no power whatever to pledge this country to any plan agreed upon, it was stated.

ALAND ISLANDS STATUS CONSIDERED BY LEAGUE

London, July 9.—With A. J. Balfour, former British foreign secretary, presiding, the Council of the League of Nations met here today to settle the status of the Aland Islands. Both Finland and Sweden presented claims of ownership of these islands, which lie between Finland and Sweden, at the junction of the Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Bothnia. Mr. Balfour pointed out that the council could act only in a friendly advisory capacity and could not enforce any decision.

CHELSEA OWES BOSTON $21,000 FOR BRIDGES

The statement that the city of Chelsea owes Boston $21,000 was made by City Auditor J. Alfred Mitchell following receipt of a letter by Mayor Peters from Mayor Brackett, considering the Boston-Chelsea bridges as unsafe and dangerous. City Auditor Mitchell said Parkinson & Dodge, the amount mentioned as its share of the construction and maintenance of the former Chelsea south bridge, the north bridge and the Chelsea street bridge, and if the money were paid this city might make repairs or build a new bridge, as suggested by the Chelsea Mayor.

FINE TWO AUTOISTS ON CHARGE OF DRINKING

Arraigned today in Cambridge district court on complaint charging them with operating a motor car while under the influence of liquor, James H. Hurley and William Dowling, both of Broadway, Cambridge, were found guilty and fined $50 each. Sentence was suspended twenty-four hours for the two men, time to decide between paying the fine or posting bonds pending an appeal. They were arrested Thursday morning after a collision in Cambridgeport.

officers, acting between the soldiers and constabulary, addressed the dissatisfied men and asked them to state their complaints.

A constable named McNamee was chosen spokesman for the insurgents and he informed the officers that the constables would not co-operate with the soldiers. He said that soldiers ought be sent if they attempted to force their way into the constabulary barracks. He declared furthermore that the constables would not bear arms and that they would not conduct raids.

"We are Irish and you are English," cried McNamee. "This is your answer."

Whereupon he tore off his belt and tunic and threw them at the feet of Inspector-General Smith. The Inspector-general ordered McNamee's arrest, but another constable stepped forward and drew his revolver, declaring that he would kill the man who dared lay hands on McNamee.

The amazed officers withdrew to confer among themselves. A full report of the incident was drawn up and Sinn Fein agents managed to secure a copy of it.

LEPROSY "CURE" CAUSES STIR IN THE MEDICAL PROFESSION

BOARD TO EXAMINE PATIENTS

Dr. F. H. Parker Praised for Painstaking Work in Bringing Relief to Victims

Has the dream of the medical profession for centuries—a cure for leprosy—come true? Has this dread disease, which has baffled physicians the world over, been conquered? Will the honor for such a cure go to a Massachusetts man?

These questions are being asked by physicians as the result of the announcement by Dr. Bernard P. Carey, director of the division of communicable diseases of the State Department of Health, that he believes two young men who have been confined at the State leper colony on Penikese Island for the past three years have been cured of this malignant disease. He expects they will soon be released and permitted to return to their homes in Boston and Malden.

TESTS SUCCESSFUL.

Dr. Carey told an American reporter that every indication points to the fact that both men have been cured. Several tests have been made upon them for traces of the disease and all of them show that it has disappeared. Both suffered from severe cases when they were sent to Penikese.

To make sure that the men are cured Dr. Carey has arranged for a commission composed of Boston and New York specialists to examine the men beginning July 20. Thorough tests covering a period of a week will be made. Those who comprise the commission are Dr. Victor Heiser of New York, member of the International Health Board; Dr. Victor Safford of Boston Board of Health; Dr. Algernon Coolidge of Massachusetts General Hospital, nose and throat specialist; Dr. Townsend Thorndike, a Boston skin specialist, and Dr. F. H. Parker, who has charge of the sixteen lepers confined at Penikese Island.

"I hope that the examinations to be made by the commission gives the same result as our tests," said Dr. Carey. "I hope the young men can return to their homes and again go about among people as we expect.

TRACES OF DISEASE GONE.

"Our tests show that the lesions or nodules have completely disappeared. The face of one of the young men was covered with lumps or nodules when he went to Penikese. Now his face is clear. Before both men have been cured. We can find no trace of the disease now in either man.

The tests show negative results—that is, that there are no traces of the disease. In my opinion both men are cured and can go back to their regular life. If the health of both by the commission bear out my belief it will be a wonderful thing for with men that two young men were practically sentenced to confinement for life have been released. I only ask I hope that our tests are corroborated."

LAUDS DR. PARKER.

Dr. Carey said that the treatment of the men consisted in plenty of air and sunshine, good food, etc., similar to treatment of tuberculosis, and in addition the use of chemicals, imported from India, and sodium murphuae and sodium gyrocardinate. The three substances were given internally and also as a hypodermic. The oil was given in capsule form when taken internally as it is an irritant. Five drops were given at first and the amount increased until a dose of forty drops could be taken by the patient without upsetting his stomach. This Indian oil was administered three times a day.

"The apparent cure of these men is due largely to the faithful ministrations of Dr. Parker who is in charge of the leper colony," said Dr. Carey. "He has given the best that is in him to the unfortunates under his care."

Women Admirers On Elwell's 'Payroll'

New Photo of Mrs. Josephine Lewis Peet Wilmerding, the beautiful divorcee friend of Joseph B. Elwell, slain turfman. Mrs. Wilmerding has denied she was a favorite of Elwell's, as alleged by his former housekeeper, Mrs. Annie Kane.

New York, July 9—Turning their attention once again from the investigation of the possibility that Joseph B. Elwell, whist expert, might have been murdered because of some financial transaction, members of the district attorney's office today began a probe into Elwell's financial dealings with women.

It was said that it had been ascertained that the slain card authority had paid one woman $400 a month up until a short time before he was found dying in the reception room of his home.

INVESTIGATE CHECK STUBS.

Meanwhile prohibition agents continued their investigation of Elwell's alleged connection with a ring illicitly engaged in importing whiskey into New York and disposing of it to wealthy Fifth avenue clubmen. The two men whose arrest was declared to be imminent had not been taken into custody, but were still under surveillance, the prohibition authorities declared.

Among witnesses questioned by District Attorney Rwann were several bankers from the financial district, who brought with them records of Elwell's check transactions covering a period of several weeks prior to his death.

These checks, where they bore the names of women, were compared with a list of the women already known to the authorities as intimates, friends or acquaintances of the murdered man, in an effort to learn if there might not be some new feminine figure in the case who has not been discovered.

What the outcome of the investigation was the District Attorney did not announce.

WILL LAWYER IS QUESTIONED.

Another witness called to the district attorney's office was George B. Post, Jr., whom a garage man had said he picked up in William H. Pendleton's car at 2 a. m. on the morning Elwell was murdered, although Pendleton, former racing partner of Elwell, had maintained his machine was in a garage in Elmhurst on that night.

Post informed the authorities that it was June 8 and not June 11, the morning of the murder, that the incident occurred.

Frederick Ingraham, the attorney who drew the second will for Elwell —which has not been found—described the drawing of the instrument to the authorities. He said the will left most of the estate to Elwell's son and a small bequest to William E. Barnes, his secretary.

THREE MORE NEEDED FOR SOCIALIST JURY

Chicago, July 9—In fifty-two days since the opening of the trial of William Bross Lloyd, millionaire Socialist, and nineteen others charged with conspiracy to overthrow the Federal government, only nine jurors have been accepted.

HOME LOOTED OF $10,000 IN GEMS

Daring Pair, Ransacking Residence as Family Dines, Flee in Fast Auto

Long Branch, N. J., July 9—While the family of Manuel Lopez were at lunch in their Summer home in Rumson, two clever thieves stopped a speedy automobile at the curb, and one of them gained a bedroom by a side entrance, escaping with jewelry valued at $10,000.

Mrs. Randall Keator, Mrs. Lopez's daughter, discovered the robbery almost immediately, but before she could summon the chauffeur to trail the thieves, they had disappeared to their high-power car.

Among the jewels stolen is Mrs. Keator's engagement ring, valued at $2,000, a diamond bracelet of great value presented to Mrs. Lopez's mother on her wedding day, a sapphire ring also two pearl necklaces. The gems had been left on a bureau in the bedroom.

The daring daylight robbery is the first of its kind reported in the fashionable section of the famous Rumson drive, and has set the summer residents aghast and wondering whether it means another series of seashore robberies such as was witnessed last season.

What makes the case more surprising is that Mrs. Keator saw the man come down the stairs, and he nodded to her as he made his way out by the side door. She says she thought he was one of the several men working about the house until a maid called attention to the fact that he carried something under his coat.

BRITISH INSULT U. S. FLAG

Americans Who Saw Sailors Tear It Down in Bermuda to Urge Colby to Act

New York, July 9—City Magistrate John F. Mulrenan, who has just returned from Hamilton, Bermuda, brought details of an insult to the American flag by three Englishmen on the Fourth of July. The men were arrested and pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. They were given a choice between a fine of 5 pounds and 10 shillings each or a jail sentence of twenty days.

The magistrate said he would refer the incident to the State Department in the hope that an apology would be demanded from the British government.

The magistrate said that he and a party of Americans were sitting on the veranda of the American House in Hamilton, singing patriotic airs, when a group of sailors from the H. M. S. Agincort climbed the pillars of the porch, tore down a large American flag and trampled it under their feet.

The Americans protested. The British responded by spitting on the onlookers. Hasty arrests prevented a riot. The men arrested, the magistrate said, were J. A. Jewell and J. J. Dove, sailors, and R. H. Rimmer, a steward.

James J. Dunn, a merchant of Bristol, Ct., who was in the party with Magistrate McGeehan, corroborated the former story of the incident on his arrival at his home. He complained that the fine imposed was utterly inadequate and that the State Department would be pressed to act.

Show Nurses How to Beat Beef Barons

One does not have to pay a dollar a pound for beefsteak to have a good meat dish that all the family will like.

Just ask the six girl students of the Household Nursing Association who went to market today with their teacher, Miss E. S. Clark, and found still all about cheap meats, even in this day of inflated beef.

"E. S. Day, who lectures to Simmons College and other household science schools on good values in cuts of meat, shared honors with Miss Clark in letting out the props that make beef for dinner tob expensive to serve on many tables. Miss Clark gave a few recipes.

"There are the forequarter cuts of beef," she said, "scorned by too many cooks. Don't scorn them any longer. Just remember that often the cheaper cuts are better flavored.

"Buy shin beef; buy chuck; buy forequarter of lamb, and then use your brains in cooking them into ravishing dishes.

"Make a pound or a little more of cold cooked forequarter beef, shin or chuck," said Miss Clark. "Melt golden brown in a stewpan, add the meat, add also tomato and parsley and cucumber or whatever vegetables you prefer. Be sure to season delicately. Celery salt, onion salt, bay leaves, mint, all season with pleasure. Then set the dish and serve cold. This is a main course for dinner, and it may be served for six persons for less, far less, than a dollar.

"Then meat pies. Any good, cheap meat, beef or lamb, from the less expensive cuts should be cooked a long time in its gravy, each season with romance, whether you use celery salt or something you like better. Add vegetables if you wish. Then bake in a deep dish, with a puff paste crust or a potato crust. Here again for less than a dollar you can get a good meat dish.

"Heavier cuts of beef, added to macaroni or rice or samp, and thoroughly delicately, mixed again with gravy or tomato sauce and baked, make very inexpensive meal dishes. Use macaroni or rice or samp extending the meat flavor."

POLICE RACE TO GET PRISONER

Man Caught in Hartford Wanted in Cambridge, Fall River and New York

William L. Kady, alias Kadras, alias Bruno, listed by the police as a high class burglar and wanted in several cities, was apprehended at Hartford, Ct., as the result of a complaint against a gambling game which he himself gave to the police.

Police inspectors of Cambridge, New York and Fall River, with warrants for Kady, were in Hartford today, each claiming priority in his possession. He is alleged to have jumped a $2,500 bail in Cambridge, and is also sought under indictment there.

Kady is thirty-eight years old and is on parole from the Massachusetts State prison.

On September 13 of last year Kady was discovered by a housewife burglaring through an apartment house in Cambridge. The police caught him and he was released on $2,500 bail. He then disappeared.

Later, at Fall River, he was arrested for burglary and released on $1,800 cash bail. He vanished again.

PROHIBITION DROVE BREWER TO SUICIDE

Despondency over prohibition caused Charles W. Russert, fifty-nine years old, a master brewer, to commit suicide, his friends said today. Russert, who lived at Houghton Brewery in Roxbury, in which he was financially interested, and where he formerly was master, had until recently been confident that the United States would soon be on a "light wines and beer" program. Russert was at one time a consulting brewer of a Brewers' institute in the Middle West and was president of the United Brewers' Academy, a former president of the Master Brewers' Association of the United States and the New England Breweries Society.

TWO INJURED IN MYSTERY CRASH

Salisbury Police Hunt Auto Believed to Have Run Down Boston Motorcyclists

Salisbury Beach, July 9—With little more than bloodstains on the highway between Ring's Island and Salisbury Beach and damages to the rear of a sidecar motorcycle as clues, the police of Salisbury and the Merrimac Valley are trying to apprehend motorists who are believed to have fled after having run down the two smaller vehicles and injuring its two Passecquanits, George Stafford and Joseph Pasquale, both of Batavia street, Boston.

Stafford and Pasquale were returning from Salisbury Beach and, it is believed, an automobile sought to pass them at considerable speed. Both were thrown to the road. The nature of their injuries leads to the belief that they struck on their heads. They were in too dazed a condition to give a clear account of the accident.

The cyclists were found lying in the road by a jitney driver and were taken by him to the Ring's Island Home, to which they were bound when the accident occurred. Dr. John P. Shaw of Salisbury attended them and later took them to the Anna Jacques Hospital, Newbury. Their cases are under observation.

MANCHESTER CENSUS MAY BE RECOUNTED

Manchester, N. H., July 9—A new census of this city for census returns by the Federal Census Bureau is in prospect, according to word and data just received. Washington is prepared to replace the entire city census at its own expense if any mistake is found in the count here.

Maps showing the division of the city for the returns of 78,920 reported by the Census Bureau has arrived at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The chamber claimed that the count was probably 5,000 short.

WILSON SCORED BY LYNN MAYOR

Creamer Blames Administration for Inability to Get Coal Orders Filled

Mayor Walter H. Creamer of Lynn sent a spirited letter to President Wilson today denouncing the apathy of the administration in the face of the New England coal situation.

Mayor Creamer, himself a Democrat, says the situation is due to "gross disregard of American interests by those in power in Washington," and demands an immediate embargo on coal exports. Failure of mine operators to deliver 7,000 tons of coal contracted for months ago by the city of Lynn furnishes the basis for Mayor Creamer's attack. He says the operators would not deliver the coal because the contract called for only $4.25 at the mines, giving the excuse they could not get cars.

Notwithstanding this alleged car shortage, he says he can get 8,000 tons at $9.50 a ton from foreign buyers, and with shipment guaranteed to begin immediately.

"This means that Leghorn is being favored at the expense of Lynn—Italy at the expense of the United States," he says. "It means cars can be found when abnormal export prices are in sight."

DEVELOPMENTS OF A DAY.

Other developments today in the nation-wide effort to better the coal situation were:

1—George H. Cushing, managing director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, says there is no coal shortage, save in the hair-raising reports of alarmist government officials. He accuses such officials of being responsible for present "panic prices."

2—Fight resumed before Anthracite Mine Commission at Scranton to open books of mine operators and probe charges of monopoly and profiteering.

3—Evidence given before same commission to the effect that coal companies "camouflage" profits, which range upward of 25 per cent. higher than before the war.

4—Providence delegation leaves for Washington to make strong representations concerning New England's plight.

Mayor Creamer's letter to the President follows:

"Dear Sir—Holding a contract for 7,000 tons of coal for the city, at $4.25 at the mines, which is unfilled on the plea of car shortage, I am today offered in writing 8,000 tons, at $9.50 a ton at the mines. The offer guarantees daily shipments to begin immediately, at the rate of from five to seven cars a day. The coal belongs to exporters.

BLAMES ADMINISTRATION.

"I cannot but think this situation possible only through gross disregard of American interests by the administration at Washington. Failure of the people of this city to place an embargo on water-borne coal for foreign countries favors Italy at the expense of the United States.

"If it is wicked for organized labor to combine against the public as in the Boston police strike, it is infamous for organized capital to be permitted to enter contracts on the specious plea of car shortage, and injure New England's industrial safety."

Mayor said other New England officials today were discussing charges made by George H. Cushing that the coal panic has been created by government officials, with no coal famine existing. Mr. Cushing analyses recent statements as to a "two-day" coal supply in this section, and declares the supply was enough for thirty days.

General interest in the coal situation was centred in Scranton, where hearings are in progress before the Mine Commission on the demands of the United Mine Workers for higher wages.

CHARGE EXCESSIVE PROFIT.

Representatives of the miners resumed their fight today to open the books of the coal companies to show that they were profiteering, and prove they were amply able to pay the wages demanded.

They declared a survey will show the operators' profits averaged on an average of 90 per cent. during the war; that by organizing selling companies the companies are able to conceal their actual profits, and that in one instance a company without such means of camouflage showed increased profits of 435 per cent. per ton.

25 Per Cent. Limit on Rent Boost Upheld

Boston rent payers learned with delight today of a decision by a New York judge restricting landlords in Brooklyn to a 25 per cent. increase.

As the recent law passed by the Massachusetts Legislature, which limits Bay State landlords to a 25 per cent increase, was based on the New York law, Boston rent payers felt satisfaction that the New York judge had sustained the law.

Justice Jacob S. Strahl decided in the Fourth District Municipal Court, Brooklyn, that landlords have no right to exceed the 25 per cent. limit. Here was the case decided in Brooklyn:

Frank L. Eichauer, tenant, last April leased an apartment at No. 765 Park place, Brooklyn, at $55 a month. He paid this amount for May, but refused to pay for June on the ground the amount was extortionate. The former tenant of his apartment, he learned, had paid only $29 a month, so Eichauer offered a 25 per cent. increase over this, making a total of $36.25. The landlord, the F. A. L. Realty Company, brought suit for $55.

In his decision, Justice Strahl said: "I am satisfied this landlord has exacted an unjust, unreasonable and oppressive assessment."

LIQUOR CASES UP TO FULL BENCH

Will Decide Whether State Courts Have Jurisdiction Under 18th Amendment

Did the courts of Massachusetts lose jurisdiction of prosecutions made under its statutes for violation of the liquor laws when the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States took effect?

This question was argued before the full bench of the Supreme Court today.

As disposition of about 100 cases in the Superior Criminal Court is dependent upon the decision of the court, Chief Justice Rugg deemed the matter of sufficient public importance to summon Judges back from their vacations so that there might be a speedy determination of the issues involved.

On June 21 Florence Nickerson in the Superior Criminal Court was found guilty of selling liquor and Judge Dubuque reported the case to the Supreme Court after counsel for the defendant, Adolphus M. Burroughs, had ineffectually sought to have Judge Dubuque rule as matter of law that the amendment to the Federal Constitution had superseded the State laws relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

Mr. Burroughs contended that until Massachusetts in compliance with the provisions of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States had enacted appropriate legislation, the State had lost all rights to make prosecutions for liquor sold for beverage purposes.

The sale made by Miss Nickerson, Mr. Burroughs said, was subsequent to January 29, 1920, when the constitutional amendment took effect, and the State authorities had no further right to proceed against her.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons while admitting that the Massachusetts statute which defined intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes might be invalidated by the constitutional amendment, yet the amendment did not take from the State the power to prosecute other branches of its liquor laws.

Mr. Lyons submitted that the 18th amendment to the Constitution of the United States should not be so interpreted as to deprive the Commonwealth of the right to control within its own borders, in a manner not repugnant to the principles of said amendment, a subject which so intimately and seriously affects the health and moral welfare of the people.

A decision by the court may soon be expected.

Slain Bride Drew $1,500 From Bank

Chicago, July 9—A new angle in the Wanderer death mystery was uncovered by detectives working on the case today when it was learned that Mrs. Carl Wanderer, the slain bride of the former army lieutenant, had drawn $1,500 from their joint saving account in a local bank two days before she was murdered.

Whe confronted with this, her husband, who despite a tangle of contradictory statements he has made, still sticks to the story that his bride was slain by a robber, who in turn was killed by him, declared that the purpose of Mrs. Wanderer in withdrawing the money was to transfer it to another bank. In view of the fact that this made necessary the sacrifice of six months' interest on the money, however, the police frankly doubt this statement.

In the meantime Wanderer is being held at a police station and detectives are making every effort to identify the ragged stranger killed by Wanderer at the time his wife was slain.

BARNEY'S CAR IN WRECK

Escaped Convict Thrown From Machine While Making Dash for Freedom

ting Barney at this time is shown by the fact that a few hours after Barney, disgusted with his surroundings in the barn, had refused to stay there longer, despite the orders of the gang, and insisted on living in the open air, a raiding party, led by Warden Stultzick, arrived.

The raiding party, armed to the teeth, surrounded the barn. They found it locked, and after considerable work battered down the door. But it was too late.

A few hours before Barney had departed from the unsavory atmosphere, strolling leisurely through the main streets towards the open country in Lexington.

He passed the remainder of the night in the woods of Lexington, preferring the open air to any more barns and declining to take a chance with any of his friends, who might get into trouble through sheltering him.

The following day was Memorial Day and this too he spent in the woods, complaining somewhat bitterly of being obliged to forego the usual holiday enjoyments. As for camping out he felt no hardship in that, having served as a Texas Ranger, and being a seasoned "camper out," and fond of life in the open.

On the night after Memorial Day it was decided, at a conference held by the auto gang in the woods, attended by those aiding in the spiriting Barney away, that the time to make a getaway from this section of the country had arrived.

A high-powered car of racing make, well-stocked with gasoline and oil and equipped with several spare tires, had been provided, together with a driver whose nerves were steeled for anything which might happen.

The conference developed into a long and spirited debate as to the direction the fugitive should take, and it was finally decided by the ringleaders of the gang that New York state should be Barney's goal. The discussion narrowed down to a choice of two routes, and it was agreed that should the driver scent danger—"a rumble"—on one road, he was immediately to switch to the other road.

MEETS FIRST MISHAP.

During the conference Barney, with typical love of show and that grim humor he has so frequently displayed, had dressed himself in the full uniform of a major of the American army, a uniform stolen from Camp Devens. It was in this dress that he participated in the conference—as far as he was personally concerned in the dress that he made his first attempt to get away.

The only disguise, outside of the uniform he wore, that Barney carried in the car, was a leather aviation coat, an aviation cap, and a pair of green goggles.

He was unarmed. In fact at no time during his "vacation" did he carry a pistol or revolver — in the words of the gang—"pack a gat."

The money raised by the gang to pay the expenses of the trip and to take care of such emergencies as might arise was turned over to the driver of the car. The driver started his engine, Barney shook hands all round, and the dash was on. It was then about to strike the hour of midnight.

Bad luck stuck close to Barney. Less than fifty miles from the starting point came the first mishap.

GRATEFUL HE LIVED.

When Herman L. Barney suddenly found himself lying in the road with a severe pain in his right arm he did not curse his bad luck. He thanked God that he was alive. He had been violently thrown from the machine in which he was speeding to his freedom, and realized that Nemesis was not only on his trail but also on the trail of the entire gang. Not only his plans but theirs had gone astray.

Less than fifty miles from the starting point in Lexington, Barney, regardless of the fact that a dozen members of the auto thieves' gang had spent four days and nights carefully planning his escape, and even mapping out his route, literally yard by yard.

The gang had availed themselves of all the resources at their command in planning Barney's flight from Boston. It was their desire to get the fugitive off their hands as speedily and as safely as possible. The sooner he reached a safe place the sooner the gang could breathe freely.

In making plans for Barney the gang was also making plans for itself.

They had secured the speediest motor car and for it a driver who had won his spurs on the fastest auto race tracks. The car was heavy with emergency equipment. But they had not reckoned on other cars on the road with far less expert drivers. And this proved the undoing of their plans.

TO BE CONTINUED TOMORROW.

BRANDEIS FIGHTS ARMY SCHEME

Frankfurter Wants Constabulary for Palestine; Zangwill Criticizes Zionists

London, July 9.—The battle to force the formation of an international Jewish army for the protection of Palestine will be carried on to the floor of the Zionist convention here on Monday, according to statements of the leaders of the "activists," who have prepared a drastic program.

Zionist leaders in the convention, including Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court; Felix Frankfurter, Baron De Hass, Max Nordau and Lord Rothschild, are firmly opposed to the scheme and declare that the resolution will be defeated by an overwhelming majority.

"The Jews of America want to protect Palestine by peaceful penetration but at the same time they favor the organization of an efficient mounted police constabulary, along the lines of the Northwest mounted police of Canada," Felix Frankfurter declared. "This body would be responsible for maintenance of order within the boundaries.

"We are also in favor of the most rapid methods of immigration possible. This necessarily will mean some selective form of immigration," he continued.

"The Jews of America want to attack the homeland proposition from a practical and not a visionary standing. We will insist that the conference deal with facts and not with dreams.

"It will be impossible to throw a million Jews into Palestine without first pioneering with selected people. We expect to have a fight with Nordau on this question, as also on most opposition from the activists."

Further evidence of dissension in the conference is seen in the absence of Israel Zangwill. He has informed his friends that while he is in sympathy with the aspirations of the Zionists he does not agree with the methods they are pursuing. He declares that they are not asking enough, and attacks the project as being developed on too small a scale.

Lord Rufus, who is responsible for the realization of the Jewish aspirations in Palestine, lunched today with Dr. Weizmann and Dr. Frankfurter. He reaffirmed his sympathy with the Zionists, congratulated them upon the progress they have made, and consented to address a great thanksgiving mass meeting of Jews which will be held in Albert Hall.

NEWSPAPERS CLOTHE NEWLY-BORN BABIES

Newly-born babies are being carried from maternity hospitals in European cities wrapped in newspapers because of lack of other covering, according to news received by the American Red Cross. The Paris office of the Red Cross reports that the need of garments and supplies is widespread and calls for the contribution by the American Red Cross of not less than 250,000 layettes. The Boston Metropolitan Chapter has promised 2,500 to be delivered by September 1.

This Husband Wants His "Night Off"

New York, July 9.—Answering charges made by his wife in a suit for separation, William Lee, prosperous garage owner, filed affidavits in the Supreme Court in which he asked if a man "can't have a night off once in a while?" and if "just because a man is married to a woman must he stick to her for life?"

"My wife always insisted on my bringing home a certain Socialist newspaper. I didn't like this paper nor its doctrine, and when I refused to buy it we quarrelled. Sometimes I became so discouraged that I yielded to the weakness of nature by indulging in liquor," Lee declared.

Justice Davis ordered Lee to pay $275 monthly and $200 counsel fee.

'LISTENED IN' ON DEATH PLOT

Lawyer Says Aged Millionaire Approved Scheme to Kill His Divorced Wife

Washington, July 9.—Testifying that by "listening in" on a telephone conversation he heard Chester A. Snow, aged Washington millionaire, give approval to a plot to kill his divorced wife, Addie H. Snow, Henry E. Davis created a sensation at Snow's preliminary hearing here.

Davis, who is Mrs. Snow's attorney, testified that the plot was revealed in his presence by Mrs. Ena P. Acker, who is a private detective agency, who is held in $10,000 bail on a charge of being one of the co-conspirators.

Mrs. Acker, according to Davis, went to the home of Mrs. Snow to warn her of the alleged plot.

"I have come to expose the most horrible plot I ever knew of," Davis declared Mrs. Acker stated. "Mr. Snow proposed to me that I get rid of Mrs. Snow. He suggested that I take her out in an auto, administer a poison sufficient to kill her, then overturn the automobile and make it appear she had been killed in an accident."

Mrs. Acker, who, Attorney Davis stated, wished to impress upon him that she was telling the truth, went to the telephone and called Mr. Snow. She got his office and declared she talked to Snow himself.

This telephone conversation, Davis testified, took place after the revelations made by Mrs. Acker. The woman detective declared to Mrs. Snow and Davis that she wanted to help them. She appeared elated, Davis stated, with the telephone conversation, and turned to him saying, "there," with gesture showing satisfaction.

Two men, Snow and Hugh Milton Langdon, and one woman, Mrs. Acker, are charged with conspiracy to murder Mrs. Snow. All three were in court.

FORD MAY LEAD THIRD PARTY

Will Accept Nomination for President If It Is Offered Him, It Is Said

Chicago, July 9.—Widespread ramifications of the new third party came to the surface today and revealed a network of political lines that reach far into organized labor, farmers' associations, single-tax organizations, the Non-Partisan League and to the far-reaching extent of a grapple hold on World War veterans.

Alliances have been in process of formation with farm and labor organizations throughout the country and representatives from all the walks of life, including the clergy, are here completing final plans for a political merger of vast proportions.

With the third party convention to meet here tomorrow, several candidates either are in the race or suggested to oppose Senator Harding and Governor Cox for the presidency.

The real bolt from the blue, however, came when authoritative announcement was made that Henry Ford, democratic contestant for the seat held in Congress by Senator Truman H. Newberry, the latter under prison sentence for election corruption, would accept the third party nomination if tendered to him.

Influences are here backing Governor Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, recently renominated for the governorship of his State, for the presidential nomination.

Simple Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

To Banish Wrinkles and Freshen Up Quickly

After a strenuous day outdoors when winds, heat and exhaustion have combined to take away one's freshness and caused the skin to wrinkle and sag—or after a restless or fretful day indoors—one often has urgent need for some quick rejuvenator. Mary Garden's a dance an for the evening, or some other social event. How in the world can she make herself presentable, looking as she does? It's quite easy.

Just get an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint witch hazel at the nearest drug store, mix the two and bathe the face in the solution for two or three minutes, then look into your mirror and behold the wonderful transformation! Wrinkles have vanished, loose, tired muscles have been toned and "firmed up," marks of fatigue have flown, and you look so much brighter and younger you can hardly believe your eyes. No one need hesitate to try this, as the witch hazel and saxolite being so perfectly harmless.—Advertisement.

SCORES STREET REPAIR SYSTEM

Boston American's Campaign Against Patching Borne Out by Chamber Report

The system of "endless, expensive and ineffectual patching" of Boston's streets was severely scored by Francis N. Balch, member of a Chamber of Commerce special committee, who declared that a thorough investigation of it was warranted.

A condemnation of bad engineering and constructive methods was made in a separate report that was part of the Chamber of Commerce committee's report to the Mayor's committee on new sources of revenue at its final hearing in which the proposed new excise taxes were again under fire.

CORROBORATES AMERICAN.

"I believe it will be found that the State experts consider that a large part of Boston's troubles with regard to her highway system is due to her own fault in bad engineering and construction methods leading to a vicious circle of endless, expensive, ineffectual patching," Balch declared.

"This side of the matter would appear to need thorough investigation and ventilation and to be of importance fully warranting the necessary trouble."

The Boston American recently conducted a campaign showing the wretched condition of Boston's streets and pointing out that too much patching and not enough real construction work is being done, and that failure to see that streets are properly laid in the first place leads to expensive patching afterwards.

OPPOSE EXCISE TAXES.

All the members of the Chamber of Commerce committee expressed themselves as opposed to the excise taxes save Professor Charles W. Bullock, who thought they would work out all right to meet a temporary emergency. The opposing members were Edward F. McClennon, chairman; Frederick H. Fay, Francis N. Balch, Charles J. Bullock, Felix Vorenberg and Maurice Wrigley.

An increase in direct property and income taxes, increased fees for occupations requiring special police or other protection and increased State registration automobile fees with a just distribution of the added fees back to the cities and towns was favored instead.

The committee declared that a tax upon gross sales would have a tendency to drive retail trade out of Boston, that it was open to doubt whether it could be passed on to the consumer in view of receding prices, that the occupational tax proposed is that the occupational tax would add unjust and the luxury tax would add new complications and expense.

The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange also opposed the proposed excise taxes and declared through William R. Felton, its president, that extravagance in city hall could be checked to increase civic revenue.

150 LAWRENCE STREET WORKERS ARE LAID OFF

Lawrence, July 9.—The Lawrence street department will be closed down today until the city engineering department can secure shipments of crushed stone and cement. Alderman Finnegan believes the shutdown, which will affect 150 men, will last for three weeks. The layoff will severely tie up street construction programs mapped out. The city was notified that no shipments of cement or crushed stone will be received here prior to July 29.

JOHNNY MOONEY

The sporting fans of Boston and New England will pay a loving tribute to the memory of Johnny Mooney at Russell field, Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon. The occasion is a monster benefit for the fond mother and devoted sister of the Newton boxer, who died following an operation. Three world's champions and many other sterling ring men will box at this affair.

Johnny Mooney was a clean-cut, honest, fearless athlete. He was a credit to the sport he selected for a profession as he would have been to any business venture with which he might have associated himself. He was the kind of young man whom people admire and look up to.

Mooney's big ambition in life was to earn enough money to make his mother and sister comfortable. One of the reasons why he postponed a needed operation was because he was anxious to secure the necessary funds for a payment on a little home he had purchased for those who were dear to him.

Mooney was a Newton High graduate. At Newton he won fame as a football and track athlete. He was later an athletic instructor at the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Holy Cross. He wanted to go to France when Uncle Sam entered the war, but was told he was too young.

Mooney never failed in a crisis. Neither have the sporting followers of New England. Show your appreciation of a true American, a loving son, a fond brother, a great athlete, a noble type of manhood by attending the Mooney benefit tomorrow afternoon at Russell Field, Cambridge.

STAR HURDLERS FOR TRYOUTS

America Has Plenty of Stars Who Will Give Thomson Hard Battle

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Although Earl Thomson, Dartmouth's and Canada's record-holding high hurdler, will not figure in the hurdle events of next week's Olympic tryout games at the Harvard Stadium, the timber-jumping numbers are not to lack record holders and rare competition.

In fact the 120-yard hurdle event will bring together two world's record holders, besides one who previously held the world's record and one who equalled the latter's mark, while the 120-yard dash over the jacks will find among the participants two men who have taken the measure of Dartmouth's Canadian star in recent races. Besides this array there are many others in the high hurdlers who have shaded 16 seconds and an equal number of quarter-mile fence hoisters who have defied that difficult way in less than a minute, and rare battles from the bark of the gun are assured.

Star Hurdlers to Compete in 120-Yard Event

Viewing the field of 120-yard men, one finds such sterling performers as Walker Smith, mid-Western and former intercollegiate champion; Willard Wells of Leland Stanford, who defeated Thomson in the recent intercollegiate 220-yard hurdle race; Joe Sullivan of Boston College, who, with a six-foot handicap, chalked up an Independence Day win over Thomson, who started from scratch; Bill Young, the coast champion; John Watt, Eastern champion, and a host of others with marks ranging from 15 seconds to 16 1-5. Walker Smith, who is a most consistent 15-second performer, will rule the favorite in this event, with the other places a toss up between a dozen or more evenly matched stars.

List of Stars Who Will Seek Honors

The more prominent entrants and their best marks of the present season follow:

120-Yard Hurdles—Walter Smith of Cornell, Bill Yount of Redlands, 15-; John Watt of Cornell, W. L. Wells of Stanford, 15 1-5s.; Harold Barron of Meadowbrook A. C., 15 2-5s.; Wright of Nebraska, 15 3-5s.; Grumpsky of California, 15 4-5s.; Joe Sullivan of Boston College, H. Smalley of Pennsylvania, Myer of Rutgers, Travis Hahn of Princeton, W. E. Massey of Princeton, 16s.; Anton Rulan of Worcester Academy, Fred Murray of N. Y. A. C., Verle Murray of Los Angeles, 16 1-5s. The marks of Waldo Ames of Chicago, John Norton of California, and H. A. Hile of B. A. A. are not known.

440-Yard Hurdles—John Norton of California, 54 1-5s.; John Watt of Cornell (over 3 ft. 6 in. hurdles) 54 1-5s.; A. G. Desch of Notre Dame, 54 2-5s.; Floyd Smart of Chicago, Bill Means of B. A. A., 55 2-5s. The marks of Cubbin of Sewanee, H. Gish of Nebraska, Frank Loomis of Chicago, C. D. Daggs of Pomona College, W. B. Wells of Stanford, and Paterson of Drake College, are not known.

DUFFY ON TRAIL OF KLOBY

By JACK CONWAY.

Billy Duffy, Everett welterweight, will start a new ring drive when he clashes with Joe Jawson of Milwaukee in a twelve-round bout at the Commercial A. C. tonight. Just now Duffy is out to prove he is the logical opponent for Young Kloby.

Before he received an injury in a bout a couple of months ago, Duffy was traveling along the pugilistic highway at a lively clip. Among other things, he scored a victory over Nate Siegal of Beachmont. Just now Duffy's aggressive, two-handed style of milling always makes a hit with the fans. He is active from the time the dear old chimes sound at the opening of the first round until the mill ends. This style of battling usually enables Duffy to dispose of his opponents.

Barney Melntire of South Boston will have Teddy Murphy of the West End as an opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds. There will also be a couple of six-rounders between well matched local boys.

Electric fans and stirring fighting should cause the members of the Commercial Club to forget all about such a little thing as a hot wave.

UMPIRES ROBBED IN NEW YORK

Thieves Break Into Dressing Room at Polo Grounds and Steal Clothing and Money

New York, July 9.—Thieves invaded the Polo Grounds and broke into the dressing room of Umpires Hildebrand and Evans and escaped with the street clothes of the two officials and $900, and several pieces of jewelry.

Hildebrand was forced to go downtown in his bare in soiled shoes. Evans was more fortunate. He borrowed a pair of "flobbing, robbers," says the gang in the bleachers.

BATTLE IN THE BRAVES RANKS LEADS TO NEW TRADE RUMORS

BIG DEAL WITH NEW YORK ON

McGraw Said to Have Told Hearn of Release to Toronto Club

Cincinnati, July 9.—A big deal between the New York and Boston National League clubs is soon to be pulled off, according to reports rife in the camp of the Braves. Of course, Maranville is named; the Rabbit always manages to get into all trade rumors whenever the Braves are mentioned. It is also hinted that a couple of Boston pitchers are to be sent to the big town for the purpose of reinforcing the staggering Giants and to prevent the erstwhile strong hold of the National League from capitulating to the Yankees.

Exactly whom Stallings can spare from his somewhat attenuated hurling staff cannot be guessed at this time. Nor have any of the Boston pitchers shown enough class to insure positively much aid for the Giants in the box.

Gowdy, too, is named as one of the players likely to change his uniform before long. The blond backstop is getting along none too well these days with Manager Stallings and would welcome a shift to some other club.

Story Leaked Out as Result of Row

While all of the foregoing has been well known in the inner circles of the Heydler circuit for some little time, it became public as the result of an argument between Pitcher Benny Hearn and Manager Stallings, which is said to have culminated in a fight between the pair resulting in a heated rigid fined for the latter.

Hearn, according to the story told by some of his teammates, was told by Manager McGraw of the New York team that he was to be sent to Toronto as part payment for Outfielder Spencer, who came to the Giants when Benny Kauff was sent to the Maple Leafs a few days back. Hearn, according to the report, went to Stallings and questioned him about it.

Braves Apparently Ready to Help Out Giants

All this dovetails nicely into statements made by New York writers who stand close to the management of the Giants. One of these men came out in the open in recent articles, declaring it was the duty of the other clubs in the National League to do something to build up the Giants so as to prevent New York from becoming an American League stronghold.

None of the other clubs have headed the call, with the exception of the Braves, the management of which, seemingly, stands ready to help out New York the same as last year when Art Nehf was handed over to bolster the Giants' pennant chances against the Reds.

RESOLUTE WILL GET HANDICAP

Shamrock IV. May Have to Allow Opponent 6½ Minutes

New York, July 9.—The work of measuring the cup yachts Resolute and Shamrock IV. was continued at Morse's Floating Dry Dock, Bay Ridge, today.

The task involves so much detail that it is doubtful if Professor Harold Webb of Columbia, who has charge of the matter, will be able to make a final report before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

It was said by a man in a position to know that the Shamrock IV. will give the Resolute a handicap of about 6½ minutes.

In previous years it was a wonderful sight to see the hundreds of excursion steamers and steam yachts race out to Sandy Hook and back again at night loaded to the guards with enthusiastic spectators. But this year things are different and it is doubtful if over three or four excursion boats go out to the race.

The reason for this is that after the General Slocum disaster in 1904 a law was passed requiring excursion boats going outside of Sandy Hook to carry such a large number of life-rafts and life-boats that few excursion boats could comply with the law and make a profit without charging a prohibitive fee.

There will of course, be a fair number of steam yachts out, though the number of big boats in commission is very small compared to previous cup race years.

The bulk of those who see the race will be passengers on motor boats whose number will go well into the hundreds.

As far as the general public is concerned about all they will see of the race will be in the motion picture theatres.

London, July 9.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, British golfers, have left London to board the steamer Celtic at Liverpool for New York. With them was Jim Barnes, the American professional who finished fifth in the British open championship. Barnes said he would come to England again next year to try his fortune once more in the open event.

Vardon and Ray intend to compete in the American open championship and in the Western and Metropolitan open competitions, proceeding afterward to Canada.

Didier vs. Wiley at Revere Oval

The old cycling duels of a few seasons ago which were halted by the war will be revived tomorrow night at the new Revere cycle track when Leon Didier will meet his old rival, George Wiley, in a special match race.

Didier's exhibition spin at the beach oval on Wednesday night, when he peeled off two miles in 1.16 and 1.12 speaks well for the Frenchman's condition, and Wiley will have to be at his best to win out. The race will be run in ten-mile heats, which also favor the foreign star.

Manager Butler also will stage a junior motor-paced race over the 15-mile course with Pinky Turville, Hill and Keller following the choo-choo machines.

BATTLE ON FOR FIFTH PLACE

Red Sox and Browns in Clash for Leadership of Second Division Today

By SICK FLATLEY.

Red Sox and Browns battled today in earnest for the top perch in the second division. There's not much honor in that, but such as there was furnished incentive for competition out at the Fenway ball yard. The vanished Sox offensive power made Jimmy Burke and his vitalling performers very sanguine of taking the second joust, and thereby helping to make up for what happened when St. Louis last visited this part of the well known land.

For three games in a row, now, the natives have failed to jostle a run across the saucer, as a matter of fact they never have been even threatening much. The absence of Hooper and Hendrix seems to have ruined the assault absolutely. Young Bailey is filling in well for Hooper in right, and schang has improved as a centre fielder, but neither shapes up with the veterans, who is hospitalling.

The pitching end of the day's festivities seemed to rest with Bush and Wellman. Joe has had a few days' rest and the same goes for the Invader. Both have been tossing a bit more consistently than the rest of their fellows.

These Browns, who gamboled off with the opener here, 9 to 0, look a lot better than they did in their previous visit. They have much more pepper and seem to be in a fighting mood. They are working on the notion that the Red Sox are down for the time being, so they, meaning the Browns, might as well take advantage while the taking is good.

FITTON K. C. TO PLAY THE MEDFORD TEAM

At Cottage Park Playground tomorrow afternoon the Fitton Knights of East Boston will cross bats with the strong Medford Knights team. The Medford boys have been going at a pretty good clip so far this season, having won the most of their games. The Noddle Islanders got away to a late start this season, but have done fairly well.

ROBINSON AND SMITH TO BATTLE AGAIN

Lewiston promoters are planning to stage another bout between Jeff Smith and George Robinson. These men engaged in a hurricane battle on the Lewiston card, and reports of the contest gave the honors to Smith, others favored Robinson, while some claimed the affair was a draw. The fans have asked that the pair be rematched.

RECORD FIELD IN ESSEX GOLF

Fred Wright of Albemarle Low Scorer in the Qualifying Round

By TOM POWER

The first round of match play at the Essex County Golf Club started early today. The fifth flight was the first away from the tee, having been scheduled to leave at 8:35. Six flights played today, which is one more than was originally intended.

Two hundred and twenty-four players competed in the qualifying round, making it the largest one-day tournament ever held on the Essex County Club and incidentally one of the largest ever held in New England. The low score in the qualifying round was turned in by Fred Wright, Jr., of Albemarle, who made the course in 77. Only one other player, Harry Munro, of United Shoe, broke into the 80s, Munro scoring 79. H. B. W. Snelling of Concord made the best mark for the first nine holes with a 39, but his returning nine holes took him 41 which gave him an 80. Rodney Brown of the Essex Club was the only other player to make an even 80.

Hard Fought Matches Expected Today

In the first flight several hard fought matches were expected. The Wright-Workman match was followed by a large gallery. Parker Seinfield of Albemarle and Tom Claflin were also expected to furnish a good performance.

The score which qualified for the match play ran from 77. Wright's card, to 104, several of the low scores of yesterday's qualifiers from match play of the mark to get into the last flight would have been smaller.

Wright in his round yesterday displayed some fine golf. On the first nine holes he took as many as five 12-foot putts. On the fourth tee his drive settled on the bank of the brook and he was forced to drop back with the loss of one stroke. Which explains the 5 on the next hole he topped his second shot and took a six.

What Has Happened So Far

John Cleland, wealthy widower, with one young son, Jim, away at school, reads about the sad case of a little homeless girl and decides to adopt her. He finds that her name is Stephanie Quest, that she comes of a fine family, that her parents have died and that she has a very rich aunt. He consults Chilcrn Grismer, head of the United Charities, and learns that the girl is a distant connection, with a possible claim on moneys in the Grismer family. Cleland adopts her and takes her home with him, very much excited at this new interest in his life. Cleland's son Jim returns for the Easter vacation.

"WELL stand by her, won't we, Jim?"

"Yes, sir."

"Make up to her the last days—the cruellest injustice that can be inflicted—the loss of a happy childhood."

"Yes, sir."

"All right, old chap. Now, tell me all about yourself and what has happened since you wrote."

"I had a fight."

"With whom, Jim?"

"With Oswald Grismer, of the first form."

"What did he do to you?" inquired his father.

"He said something—about a girl."

"What girl?"

"I don't know her."

"Go on."

"Nothing. . . . Except I told him what I thought of him."

"For what? For speaking disrespectfully about a girl you never met?"

"Yes, sir."

"Oh. Go on."

The Story of the Fight.

"Nothing more, sir. . . . Except that we mixed it."

"I see. Did you—hold your own?"

"They said—I think I did, sir."

"Grismer is—your age? Younger? Older?"

"Yes, sir, older."

"How do you and he weigh in?"

"He's — I believe — somewhat heavier."

"First form boy. Naturally. Well, did you shake hands?"

"No, sir."

"That's bad, Jim."

"I know it. I — somehow — couldn't."

"Do it next term. No use to fight unless to settle things."

The boy remained silent, and his father did not press the matter.

"What shall we do tomorrow, Jim?" inquired Cleland Senior, after a long pause.

"Do you mean just you and me, father?"

"Oh, yes. Steve will be busy with her lessons. And, in the evening, nine-tenths is her bedtime."

The boy said, with a sigh of unconscious relief:

"I need a lot of things. We'll go to the shops first. Then we'll lunch together, then we can take in a movie, then we'll dine all by ourselves and then go to the theatre. What do you say, father?"

"Fine!" said his father, with the happy thrill which comes to fathers whose growing sons still prefer their company to the company of anybody else.

CHAPTER VI.

TO Cleland Senior it seemed as though vacation ended before it had fairly begun, so swiftly sped the blessed days together.

Already the morning of his son's departure for school had dawned, and he realized it with the same mental sinking, the same secret dismay and painful incredulity which he always experienced when the dreaded moment for parting actually arrived.

As usual, he prepared to accompany his son to the railway station. It happened not to occur to him that Stephanie might desire to go.

At breakfast his son sat opposite as usual; Stephanie on his right, very quiet, and keeping her gray eyes on her plate so persistently that the father finally noticed her subdued demeanor, and kept an eye on her until in her momentarily lifted face he detected the sensitive forced smile of a child close to tears.

All the resolute composure she could summon did not conceal from him the tragedy of a child who is about to lose its hero and who feels itself out—excluded, as it were, from the last sad rites.

He was touched, conscience stricken, and yet almost inclined to smile. He said casually, as they rose from the table:

"Steve, dear, tell Janet to make you ready at once, if you are going to see Jim off."

"Am—I—going?" faltered the child, flushing and tremulous with surprise and happiness.

"Why, of course. Run quickly to Janet, now." And to his son, when the eager little flying feet had sped out of sight and hearing:

"Steve felt left out, Jim. Do you understand, dear?"

"Y—yes, father."

"Also, she is inclined to take your departure very seriously. You do understand, don't you, my dear son?"

The boy said that he did, vaguely disappointed that he was not to have the last moments alone with his father.

So they all went down town together in the car, and there were other boys there with parents; and some recognitions among the other people; desultory, perfunctory conversations, cohesion among the school boys welcoming one another with order and strenuous cordiality after only ten days' separation.

Making It Up

Chilcrn Grismer, father of Oswald, came over and spoke to Cleland Senior:

"Our respective sons, it appears, so far forgot their Christian principles as to indulge in a personal encounter in school," he said in a pained voice. "Hadn't they better shake hands, Cleland?"

"Certainly," replied John Cleland. "If a fight doesn't clean off the slate, there's something very wrong somewhere . . . Jim?"

Cleland Junior left the group of gossiping boys, young Grismer also, at his father's summons, came sauntering nonchalantly over from another group.

"Make it up with young Cleland," said Chilcrn Grismer, tersely. "Mr. Cleland and I are friends of many years. Let there be no dissension between our sons."

"Offer your hand to Jim," added Cleland Senior. "A punch in the nose settles a multitude of sins; doesn't it, Grismer?"

The ceremony was effected reluctantly, and in anything but a cordial manner. Stephanie, looking on, perplexed, caught young Grismer's amber-colored eyes fixed on her; saw the tall, sandy-haired boy turn to look at her as he moved away to rejoin his satellites; perhaps saw the color rising in his mischievous face when she surprised him peeping at her again over another boy's shoulder.

Several times, before the train left, the little girl became conscious that this overgrown, sandy-haired boy was watching her, sometimes with frankly flattering admiration, sometimes furtively, as though in sly curiosity.

"Who is that kid?" she distinctly heard him say to another boy. She calmly turned her back.

And was presently aware of the elder Grismer's expressionless gaze concentrated upon herself.

Grismer is Interested.

"Is this the little girl?" he said to Cleland Senior in his hard, dry voice.

"That is my little daughter, Stephanie," replied Cleland coldly, discouraging any possible advances on Grismer's part. For there would never be any reason for bringing Stephanie in contact with the Grismers; and there might be reasons for keeping her ignorant of their existence. Which ought to be a simple matter, because he never saw Grismer, except when he chanced to encounter him quite casually here and there in town.

"She's older than I supposed," remarked Grismer, staring steadily at her, where she stood beside Jim, shyly conversing with a group of his particular cronies. Boy-like, they all were bragging noisily for her exclusive benefit, talking school-talk, and swaggering and showing off quite harmlessly as is the nature of the animal at that age.

"I don't observe any family resemblance," remarked Grismer, pursing his slit-like lips.

"No?" inquired Cleland, dryly.

"No, none whatever. Of course, the child's mother is remarkably pretty, quite remote. I trust," he added, magnanimously, "that you will be able to render her life comfortable and pleasant, and that the stipend you propose to bestow upon her may, if well administered, keep her from want."

Cleland, who was getting madder every moment, turned very red now.

"I think," he said, managing to control his temper, "that it will scarcely be a question of want with Stephanie Quest. What troubles me a little is that she's more than likely to be an heiress."

Plain Opinions

"What!"

"It looks that way."

"Do you—do you mean, Cleland, that—that any legal steps to reopen——"

"Good Lord, no!" exclaimed Cleland, contemptuously. "She wouldn't touch a penny. I wouldn't lift a finger to stir up that mess again, even if it meant a million to her!"

Grismer breathed more easily, though Cleland's frank and uncontealed scorn left a slight red on his parchment-like skin.

"Our concerns of moral and spiritual responsibility differ, I fear," he said. "—as widely as our views differ. This child, my friend of many years should appear to be a trifle biased—m-m-m-yes, a trifle biased in his opinion——"

"It's none of your affair, Grismer. We're different, that's all. You had, perhaps, a legal right to your unhappy sister's share of Chilcrn Grismer's inheritance. I exercised it; I should not have done so. It's a matter of conscience — to put it pleasantly——"

"It is a matter of creed," said Grismer grimly. "It was God's Cleland shrugged.

"Let it go at that. Anyway you needn't worry over any possible action that might be brought against you or your heirs. There won't be any. What I meant was, that Stephanie's aunt, Miss Rosalinda Quest, seems determined to leave little Stephanie a great deal more money than is good for her, I think. It isn't necessary. I don't believe in fortunes. I'm wary of them, afraid of them. They change people—often change their very natures. I've seen it too many times—observed the undesirable change in people who were quite all right before they came into fortune. What I am able to provide for her amply; I have done so. That ought to be enough."

Several Millions

Grismer's dry, thin lips remained parted; he scarcely breathed; and with remarkable ease continued to bore into Cleland with an intensity almost savage.

Finally he said in a voice as dry that it seemed to crackle:

"I—I—assume, I understand that the family had cast out and utterly disowned the family of Harry Quest—even to the child him out completely—him and his. So you will pardon my surprise, Cleland. Is—is the Quest fortune—as it were—considerable?"

"Several millions, I believe," replied Cleland carelessly, moving away to rejoin his son and Stephanie, where they stood amid the noisy, laughing knot of schoolboys.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

BUT it turned out that we had to do much more than merely invite "friend Pat" He had scruples and objections galore to being "sprung on" Virginia. He was afraid of intruding—afraid she didn't want to see him—afraid of a dozen ifs and buts, that made me see how very delicate his feelings were and how silly I'd been ever to fancy I could persuade Pat to rush in and take Virginia by storm.

But Jim triumphed. Pat agreed to come. The eager light in his blue eyes, the alert poise of his head, the tender note in his reckless voice told me how much it meant to Pat to see Jeanie again.

"By this time tomorrow night," declared Jim, as we were leaving, "the only quarrel in the Harrison setlette will be over the decision as to who gets married first—Phoebe or Jeanie."

"I wish, Jim, we weren't so sure —it's tempting fate," I said to myself.

Wet Blanket

Jim's excitement over the prospective reunion of Virginia and Pat drove all thoughts of my lost pearl ring from his mind for the time being. It might have done as much for me if I had been as cock-sure and serene as he was about the effect of having Pat surprise Virginia as we planned.

"Quit being a wet blanket," Jim cried irritably, when I raised a few objections the morning after we had persuaded—or over-persuaded —Pat.

"Can't you believe in any idea of mine? Or do you have to doubt things automatically just because they are my plans?"

"Pat was only lukewarm," I said. "For pity's sake, Anne, you're enough to persuade the Angel Gabriel his horn's out of tune," growled Jim.

As he flung the words at me he rushed from the room as if escaping from an atmosphere that irked him. I was sorry I had been such a doubting Thomas, and so I pounced on the 'phone as soon as I thought he'd be at the office.

"I'm sorry, Jim," I said contritely. "I do believe in you, dear."

Jim's voice came back with a mixture of amusement and irritation.

"Make up your mind quicker, then, next time. I know what I'm talking about once in a while. And don't keep me from a wire where I'm trying to buy before the market skips up on me."

"I won't keep you," I replied, hoping that he'd protest that it was worth while to have me interrupt. But Jim wasn't in a lover-like mood, and he hung up the receiver with an abrupt goodbye that left me feeling suspended in mid-air.

The day had to be filled in somehow, so I determined to carry out my original plan of dropping in at Haldane's and carrying Daisy off to lunch. True, I believed Daisy had taken my ring. But I don't believe in judging nor in calling anyone a thief until you understand her temptations. Moreover, I felt that unless this situation were handled most carefully my friend Kate's little sister might be swept down to wreck and ruin through the temptations I had unwittingly placed in her path.

A Casual Air

I assumed the most casual of airs when I asked Daisy to lunch with me, explaining lightly that I was in the neighborhood, and, since I hated to lunch alone, was counting on her to save me from that fate. Daisy's colorless manner barely covered the sullen implication that she didn't need me to buy her lunch. Nevertheless, she came with me. She was in the yellow linen again. And the brown hat that topped it had the effect of putting out all possible glow like a candle-snuffer. Brown and yellow on Daisy made her look on the verge of an attack of jaundice!

"Have you time to come to one of the places over on the Avenue?" I asked.

"I'm no slave certain to lose my job if I take half an hour extra," replied Daisy with a drabness that just escaped being sullen.

"Good!" I cried, determined to be Daisy's fairy godmother whether she liked it or not. "Then we'll hail the approaching taxi and conserve our time for the eats."

In a whirl of good humor that ignored her lack of responsiveness, I propelled Daisy into the taxi and from it to my favorite corner in the smartest restaurant I knew.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Seymour

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

SEYMOUR.
VARIATION—Seymore.
RACIAL ORIGIN—Norman-French, also Middle English.
SOURCE—Descriptive of locality, also of occupation.

IT is surprising how many family names which have come to us from England have developed from two or more independent sources. The surname of Seymour is one of these.

Regarding it in the light of one of these sources, it belongs to that very large classification of family names, descriptive of localities in various parts of northern Europe, which developed in England following the invasion of William the Conqueror.

As William had gathered his forces from many sections of Normandy, making it a rather cosmopolitan host, and as this took place at a time when there was necessity for some system of names which would distinguish one John from another and one Hubert from another, it became quite common, when the Normans got to England, to add to a man's given name some mention of the locality in Normandy from which he had come. One of the places from which many of the invaders were enrolled was St. Maur. The records show first mention of this surname in the form of "de St. Maur" ("of St. Maur"). Following this the English language went through the throes of radical change in a short period, from which the name emerged as Seymour and Seymore.

The more humble explanation of the name's origin is that it developed from the trade of some of the early bearers. The word for tailor in those days was sometimes "seamer," and it is more than likely that, in some instances at least, the surname Seymour may be so explained, being influenced in its spelling by the prior existence of the changed form of St. Maur.

Tomorrow—MacWilliams.

Household Suggestions

Ammonia will be found excellent for renovating and removing stains from a linen or cotton dress. Buy some ammonia and dissolve it in a wine bottle of hot water. Place the garment flat upon the table and thoroughly brush it until it is free from dust. Now proceed to rub it well over with a cloth soaked in ammonia water, taking care that every little stain is rubbed. Repeat the rubbing process if necessary. Hang the skirt out on a line in the air till no smell clings to the cloth. Then brush it out thoroughly, and the jersey should be quite clean and fresh.

To clean fire-irons, scrape some bath-brick into an old saucer and add a little paraffin to make into a thick paste. Apply this with a rag, then rub off with some dry whitening and polish with a leather to remove all stains. If the article so stained is small enough to be placed in a basin of water, this method should be resorted to at once, and continued until no more will come out.

* * *

To clean a white wool jersey the following method is splendid: Buy 5 cents' worth of calcined magnesia from the drug store and mix with water till it is of the thickness of cream. Apply this to the jersey with a clean rag, and let it remain on for a couple of days. Then brush it out thoroughly, and the jersey should be quite clean and fresh.

TO AMUSE THE CHILDREN

Mrs. Howard, my neighbor, often drops in to discuss household matters over a cup of tea. You don't need me to tell you fudge difficulties were solved.

"Your fudge difficulties?" I asked her.

"Yes," she explained. "You see, almost every day, my little girl asks to make fudge. Marjorie is just learning to cook, and I like to encourage her. But my butter bills were mounting tremendously, and I was beginning to think that fudge was just a little too expensive and then you told me about Ideal. It is so, comparatively inexpensive. And now it should taste like fudge. We like fudge better since we began to make it with Ideal."

TOAST AND UNCLE JOHN'S SYRUP

Now waffles and syrup, for tea —it's the usual story. And you couldn't ask for a youngsters' So Jane and I tried to get our youngsters to like toast, at tea. We didn't succeed so well until we added Uncle John's Syrup. We set the toast in long thin strips, into little glass bowls we poured Uncle John's Syrup. Now our youngsters ask for their syrup and toast, and we are not troubled any more by them teasing for waffles. Uncle John's Syrup has filled in the breach—and Jane and I are grateful.

For we know by experience that this syrup is pure and wholesome for children.

FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

My two husky little sons, age eight and ten, came into the sitting room the other afternoon, when I was entertaining guests. They were all hot and tired, bright with health and beauty. My motive-eye roved promptly upon them. I was not ashamed to introduce them even to new Mrs. Allen, who had just moved into our neighborhood.

"So healthy and so beautiful," said she, echoing my thought, "how do you do it, Mrs. Neighbor?"

"They are Hood's Milk babies," said I. She hesitated a moment. "I'm going to get Hood's Milk for mine," she decided. It's several months now and you should see her Hood's Milk youngsters.

THE CHURCH SOCIAL AND FISH CAKES

When my mother-in-law became converted to Gorton's Ready to Fry Cod Fish Cakes, she became converted with a shout. That is why she gave the church people such a surprise. The minister's wife had put her on the supper committee, and my mother-in-law rave them beans and Gorton Ready To Fry Cod Fish Cakes.

"Mrs. Jones," said the minister's wife, "are you the cook that Mrs. Smith made last fall. You're an expert, Mrs. Stone."

"Nonsense," said my mother-in-law confessed, honestly. "At home I found Gorton's Fish far better than my own. That's why I served Gorton's Ready To Fry."

HOME DISTINCTION

At some of the club ladies were saying the other day, at a club party, and as they gave some thing we have our little club parties, and as they gave some thing we have all noticed that there is a distinctive good cake given, but much bread. We meant by that that we take too many women make is bread. They put too much milk in it, perhaps; perhaps don't put in enough shortening. At any rate a bread cake is dismal. That is why I always give Drake's Cake to the club tea parties. For Drake's Cake never fails, and it always possesses the distinction of the best cake served at home. Drake's Cake is always a delicious cake box.

TO RENOVATE

I never believe in throwing out one teaspoon of my good Whitehouse Coffee and the other day I had two cups and was wondering if I would use it in gelatine. Sponge that black satin with the coffee," my mother suggested. It will give a lustre like new." I did. You should try this new dress. You should try this and see for yourself.

CLAM CHOWDER

"Please give me some more of that good clam chowder."

That is what my youngsters tell me when I serve them Gosson's Clam Chowder. And I marvel at the skill that made Gosson's Soups. It seems a miracle that all the flavor of the clam and the delicate nourishment could be got into Gosson's Powdered Soups.

TOMMY'S PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

Tommy is my little son. He is a healthy, hearty boy, and he likes peanut butter sandwiches. I like them myself. Tommy's favorite Peanut Butter sandwich. I take my Forster's Peanut Butter, and cream it in a little bowl; I add a dash of curry powder a teaspoon of lemon, and a spoonful of mayonnaise. This makes the most mysterious sandwich you ever ate. And delicious, too. Then I spread very thin slices of white bread with the mixture, and serve them for tea.

AS COMPARED WITH HOME-MADE

I have often heard women say that they would never buy a loaf of bread. I was one. I always wished to say to those ladies that it all depended upon the bread. Some home made bread I do not consider to be even edible. Under conditions too irregular, with beating of eggs and lifting, biscuits. But Hathaway's Bread, the typical sweet-meated home-made bread, is always up to the standard of the very best bread baked at home. It stands to reason that Hathaway's must be an excellent bread, it has been made for forty years; experience is behind it. It is just common sense to use Hathaway's Bread.

THE SECRET

"How do you make this wonderful jellied tomato?" my neighbor, Mrs. Howard, Rock Jellied Tomato Bouillon.

"Why, it's simple enough," I told her. This is the recipe: One envelope of Plymouth Rock gelatine; cup beef broth (cold); cups beef broth (hot); cup tomato pulp; teaspoonful salt; chili sauce; teaspoonful salt; teaspoonful paprika.

"Soften the gelatine in the cold broth and dissolve in the hot broth; add the puree, chili sauce, salt and pepper; mix, and turn into a pan; mould and serve in bouillon cups, in chunks of aspic.

Your grocer keeps Plymouth Rock.

A SAUCY PEANUT SANDWICH

I like piquancy in my food. Particularly I like to make sandwiches, for tea or luncheon or picnic, that have in them a dash of smartness about them. And, as every housekeeper knows, one of the most alluring sandwiches may be made of such simple ingredients. There's my favorite Forster's Peanut Butter sandwich. I take my Forster's Peanut Butter, and cream it in a little bowl; I add a dash of curry powder a teaspoon of lemon, and a spoonful of mayonnaise. This makes the most mysterious sandwich you ever ate. And delicious, too. Then I spread very thin slices of white bread with the mixture, and serve them for tea.

NEVER HEARD DEANS QUARREL

Farm Hand Asserts Slain Doctor Apparently Thought Much of Wife

East Jaffrey, N. H., July 9—When interviewed by detectives at Margaretville, N. Y., on Monday, September 2, 1918, relative to the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean, Charles Lamb, who worked for Laurence Mason Colfelt in this town, made the following statement:

"I am thirty-five years of age, single and a Bohemian. I was born near Guttenburg and came to this country about six years ago. I worked for Colfelt on two different occasions, the first time when he lived on the Sterling place in Harrison, N. Y., and the last time when he lived on the Dean place in Jaffrey, N. H.

HELPED COLFELTS CLEAN UP.

"I worked for George Wilson, vice-president of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of New York, at his Harrison place from April to October, 1917. Mr. Colfelt also had a house in Harrison for several years and he and his wife were cleaning up when I was about to get through on the Wilson place for the season. Mr. Colfelt called on me and asked me if I would work for him, which I agreed to do.

"I helped the Colfelts clean up after I got through with Mr. Wilson and then I spent a week with Stanley Hybeck, a friend of mine, who is a fellow countryman. He lives at No. 1440 Avenue A, New York. On election day I met Mr. and Mrs. Colfelt and went with them in their automobile to his mother's place at Fraser, Pa., to get three cows and a horse and take them to the Colfelts' New Hampshire home.

"Mr. Colfelt thought he could get a car right away in which to ship them, but learned that we would have to wait a week, so we returned to New York. After remaining in New York a week, for which Mr. Colfelt paid me, I returned to Fraser, and with the horse and three cows rode from there to Jaffrey, N. H., in a freight car and took care of the animals.

MRS. DEAN LIKE CHILD.

"It must have been the middle of November when I started to work for the Colfelts on the Dean place. I was only in the Dean house twice. The first time I went there I think Mr. Dean was in the village. I went there to get a churn and could not make Mrs. Dean understand what I wanted. She told me to sit down and she would play and sing to me. I tried to get away, but she insisted that I listen to her playing and singing. She then put her hand on her head and said she thought she was losing her mind and was sure she was going insane, just like her mother.

"The next time I was in the house Dr. Dean was with me and his wife was also there and wanted to play and sing. She talked and acted like a child, but was not violent. I never heard of the Deans quarreling. Dr. Dean seemed to think a lot of her, but seldom spoke of her."

NEVER HEARD OF TROUBLE.

"I worked for the Colfelts until February, 1918, but saw very little of Mrs. Dean and never saw her out. I never heard of any trouble between the Deans and the Colfelts. It was very cold all the time I worked there. It started to snow when I got there and the snow piled up. There was one snow storm after another. It was so cold that the milk froze in the saucer before I had time to drink it. I had to wear two pairs of gloves and my feet got frost bitten and I finally couldn't stand it and left."

ELKS PLAN DRIVE FOR 1,000,000 MEMBERS

Chicago, July 9.—The Elks are to launch an immediate membership drive to increase the total of members from 703,008 to 1,000,000, according to an announcement made at the close of the annual convention business session here.

The Detroit lodge took first money in the band contest, in which nearly 100 organizations participated. Milwaukee won the baseball championship of the order by defeating Chicago with a score of 16 to 15.

MAYOR MAKES CHANGES AT CITY HOSPITAL

The promotion of Dr. Joseph P. Mulhern from resident anaesthetist to resident surgeon at City Hospital, with an increase in salary from $100 to $125 per month, and three appointments were announced by Mayor Peters. Dr. Harlett C. Shackford was appointed first assistant pathologist at $150 per month; Dr. Merrill J. King as second assistant pathologist at $83.33 per month, and Dr. Carl A. Peterson as temporary executive assistant at $100 per month.

WOMAN'S VISITOR SLAIN BY JEALOUS RIVAL

By Universal Service.

Rochester, N. Y., July 9.—Jealousy is believed by the police to have prompted Mike Totesco, aged 25, better known as "The Shrimp," to shoot and kill James Osborn, aged 42, a teamster, as the latter was leaving the house of the woman with whom Totesco is said to be infatuated. The alleged murderer made his escape after the shooting.

LOWELL BUTCHER SEES SON KILLED BY AUTO

Lowell, July 9.—Ladislaw Nalewayko, proprietor of a meat market at No. 32 Davidson street, saw his six-year-old son run over and killed by an automobile in front of his establishment. The father vainly rushed the youngster to St. John's Hospital. Herbert F. Rose of Gilwood avenue, Chelmsford, operator of the automobile, was arrested, charged with manslaughter.

MILLIONAIRE DANISH CREW BACK FROM WEST

New York, July 9.—After landing in this city two weeks ago and since then enjoying a trip to the West Coast, the "millionaire crew" who brought the Scandinavain American liner Frederick VIII. here, returned to their billets and sailed on the steamer for Copenhagen. The crew includes members of some of the oldest and wealthiest families in Denmark. They enlisted during the Copenhagen harbor strike.

U. S. LOSS TO BE $285,000,000

Figures Show Ingeniousness of Allied Proposal to Cancel War Debt Interest

By Universal Service.

Paris, July 9.—Universal Service is able to give some detailed figures showing the ingeniousness of the allied proposal that America cancel the interest payments on their indebtedness to her. The figures further show not only that the United States would be the only real sufferer and would pay the lion's share of the war costs, but also that Great Britain would be the chief beneficiary were the scheme now so energetically advocated in the inner councils of the allies to go through.

If the United States cancels the interest payments, the loss will be $285,000,000. If it does not cancel them, it is predicted the allies will simply take their own time paying.

The United States loaned out a total of $9,906,000,000 to the Allies, as follows:

To England $4,220,000,000; to France $2,305,000,000; to Italy $1,031,000,000; to Belgium $339,000,000; to Russia $188,000,000; to Serbia $27,000,000; to other nations $126,000,000.

As compared with this total, England loaned out $8,578,000,000 among her allies. But England owes the United States only $4,220,000,000.

France, on the other hand, loaned out $1,513,000,000 but owes the United States $2,805,000,000.

France owes England $2,630,000,000. Financial experts figure that if America consents to cancel the interest payments, England stands to gain $126,000,000 and France $120,000,000, both at America's expense.

Stocks Strong in New York; Call Money 7%; Trading Brisk

MORE ACTIVITY AMONG OILS

Rails Grow Stronger During Forenoon; Biggest Gains Made by Specialties

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, most of them being at the highest level attained during the morning. There was another upward movement in the second hour. Trading was brisk, although of less volume than before this week. First hour transactions totaled more than 260,000 shares. Call money renewed at 7 per cent.

Rails improved during the forenoon and oils were the most active group. Houston Oil made the largest gain, advancing nearly 15 points. Reading gained more than 2, and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western more than 4, while point or more advances were made by Southern Pacific, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Delaware & Hudson.

SPECIALTIES WERE STRONG.

Prices were higher when trading started, but the usual leaders did not get much above yesterday's final quotations. The largest gains were made by specialties. Stromberg continued a feature, opening at an advance of nearly five points. Oils were in more demand. Houston Oil gained three on its initial sale. Mexican Petroleum was up two and Pan American one before long. International Paper was active and advanced four within a few minutes. Among other strong issues were Bosch Magneto, Barrett, National Aniline, Retail Stores and Tobacco Products. Neither steels, equipments nor motors were as prominent as on Thursday. Rails were firm. Liberty bonds were a little higher.

The market was of professional character and traders were quick to take profits. Realization selling had effect within an hour. Before mid-morning there had been a slight reaction. Some issues sold below the opening level.

MONEY THE BIG FACTOR.

Money remains the dominating factor as regards speculation and more activity in the stock market is because funds have become more plentiful. That this situation is permanent is questioned, but the future has never been viewed by either bankers or business men with more uncertainty. There has been a curtailment of business in some lines as a result of decreased demand for goods on the part of the public. Credit restrictions have had such an influence also.

What trade is going to be like in the Autumn cannot be foretold. Hence there is a disposition to hedge in all quarters. Sentiment will be greatly affected by election results. It is too early in the campaign as yet to define probabilities.

CURRENCY IS PLENTIFUL.

While money is tight, there is no shortage of currency in the United States, according to government estimates. The Treasury Department figures that on July 1 the general stock totaled $7,887,181,586, against $7,588,473,771 on the corresponding date last year. Money in circulation at the beginning of this month amounted to $6,084,554,578, while the total on July 1 of last year was $5,841,026,528 and $6,102,162,244 on June 1 of this year.

New Offering

The H. V. Greene Co. have added to their offerings the Bankers' Union for Foreign Commerce and Finance, a Connecticut corporation capitalized at $15,000,000. United Drug Sales

During the second quarter of this year sales by the United Drug Co. aggregated more than $17,500,000, according to indications. This is a high record for three months.

Buy Options On German Marks Good for Six Months

The fact that German money is selling at a small fraction of its normal value should convince even the most skeptical that purchases now offer a wonderful opportunity for large profits. Exchange experts predict a sharp advance within the next few months.

10,000 Marks Can Be Controlled for $50.00
100,000 Marks Can Be Controlled for $400.00

Buying options limits your risk as the original cost constitutes your entire liability. The cost of an option involves the use of about one-sixth as much money as would be required to buy marks outright. Should the marks held on option advance to only one-half normal value the returns on $50.00 would be over $700.00.

Send remittance, stating number of marks you wish to option at above rates. We urge prompt action as exchange fluctuates rapidly.

Send for explanatory circular.

Oil Well Equipment Scarce

Oil well equipment houses are looking forward to a larger business in the next few years than they have ever experienced before. It is said in this connection that the Lucey Manufacturing Co. will shortly do some financing in order to secure funds to provide for this expansion. It is one of the largest manufactures and distributors of oil well drilling equipment and has its principal plants at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Houston, Texas. This is at a comparatively short distance from the Midcontinent, Gulf Coast and Central West fields, which together produce more than 65 per cent. of the total oil production of the country. The Lucey company also handles a large foreign business.

TONE IMPROVES IN BOSTON

Gains Are Small but General on Local Exchange; Curb Is Irregular

The Boston market was strong at the opening, but prices did not go up much and early trading was of moderate volume. The situation here was the same in New York. A relaxation of money tension, even if slight and possibly not permanent, was encouraging. Crop reports are favorable and the conservative course followed by banking and business interests so far this year is believed to have provided a stable basis for the future. In other words, sentiment is better here and elsewhere. Waltham Watch and New River preferred went up a point on first sales. More active issues showed smaller gains.

Fractional advances were made by American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, Copper Range, Old Dominion, United Shoe, Carson Hill, Eastern Manufacturing, Wickwire, Libby, Root & Van Dervoort and Ohio Body.

Torrington receded two points on its initial transaction, but all other early declines were small. Among issues to show losses were Ventura, Swift & Co., Bigheart and North Butte.

CURB WAS IRREGULAR.

The Curb market opened as quietly as usual and prices were irregular during the morning, with the tone rather heavy. Albany Divide continued to be active and other leaders were Boston & Montana and Madonna, a newcomer to the list. Early gains were made by Eureka, Imperial, Texana, United Verde Extension and Verde Mines. Weak stocks at the start were Cascade, Daddy, Mutual, Superior Oil and Southwestern Miami part paid.

At the end of an hour Albany Divide was off 1-16 at 1 1-16, Boston & Montana, 2 cents at 62 cents; Daddy, 1* at 3* and United Verde Extension, ¼ at 32. Eureka was up 4 cents at 47 cents.

More Demand for Copper

Elevated's Holiday Traffic

The Boston Elevated carried 2,245,000 on July 3, 4 and 5 this year, which is considered a fair showing for a period generally observed as a triple holiday. On Saturday passengers numbered $52,000, on Sunday $20,000, and on Monday, the Fourth of July celebration day, the total was $73,000.

City of Vienna 5% Treasury Bonds

Austrian Exchange
Owing to the extraordinarily favorable rate of exchange of Austrian money, it is now possible to purchase 1000 kronen bonds for approximately 1-20 of the price at which 1000 kronen bonds sold five years ago.

Possibility for Profit
As the Austrian exchange rate improves, the value of these bonds increases 100% for every cent Austrian exchange advances.

Similarity to German Exchange
Four months ago German City Bonds were selling at the price at which Austrian bonds are now offered. The German bonds have since advanced to more than 2¼ times the price at which they sold last February.

Maturity and Taxation
The Vienna 5% Bonds have been declared tax exempt by the Austrian minister of finance. They are a legal investment for Austrian Savings Banks. The entire issue matures May 15, 1924.

R. H. WHITE WORKERS' FIELD DAY TOMORROW

Dancing for the light-footed, races for the fleet-footed, games for the agile, feasting for the hungry and three big "surprise events" for the inquisitive—this is the program, in part, of the annual outing of R. H. White Company employes to be held tomorrow at Nantasket Beach. The party, expected to total about 1,500, will leave by boat from Rowe's Wharf at 10 a. m. for an all-day picnic.

The events include a baseball game between the R. H. White and the Shepard Norwell Company employes; 40-yard dash and leapfrog race for boys under eighteen years; 100-yard dash for boys between eighteen and twenty years; 40-yard dash for girls under eighteen; potato and obstacle races for girls; potato race for women, and a fat women's race; fat men's race and three-legged race for men, and a tug-of-war, buyers and assistants versus floor superintendents. The three "mystery" events will come at the close of the program. G. B. Johnson, M. A. McBride and H. P. Russell will be the judges, and Arthur Reed Spencer, the starter.

The general committee includes G. H. Noyes, chairman; George B. Johnson, M. A. McBride, H. P. Russell, A. H. Sargent, Jr., E. J. Sawyer, D. C. Theall, Joseph L. Doyle, Sidney Blandford, F. W. Tully and S. L. Carr. George Shelley is chairman of the printing committee; William Callanan, committee on sports; Edward Barrington, transportation; William Lichtenstein, lunches; Margaret Fleming, tickets, and John Corbett, entertainment.

ST. PAUL'S TO OBSERVE FALL OF THE BASTILLE

A service in commemoration of the fall of the Bastille will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday evening at 7:30. There will be an address by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan on "France; the Victim of Victory." It will be preceded by an outdoor service at 7:15 on the porch of the cathedral, led by a vested choir of men and four trumpeters, at which the Marseillaise will be sung. France has made our Fourth of July a French national holiday, and it is regarded fitting that "Bastille Day," July 14, the Independence Day of France, should receive increasing recognition here.

ARLINGTON VETERAN OFF BUG HUNTING

Jere A. Crowley of Arlington, who during the late war won the rank of lieutenant in the Aviation Corps, left his home for Tulsa, Okla., to take up experiments in checking the spread of the corn borer and other insects at the Bureau of Entomology in that State. Mr. Crowley is a graduate of the Arlington High School and of Cornell University.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Have You Red Hair?

It Means Physical, Mental, Emotional Strength

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

Births are increasing all over this country, because wages increase. With more money, a man is not afraid of more children.

Adoptions of children are increasing among those that have no children, or too few.

Little girls are the favorites in adoption. There WISDOM is shown, for little girls give less trouble than boys; they are more grateful, respond more quickly to kindness and show better judgment when the time comes to get married.

Those adopting children show a strong prejudice against "red heads."

There is FOLLY back of judgment. We were once all red-headed, at least all our ancestors of the North. The golden-hair that you admire is a modification of the red hair on your ancestor who rushed out into the icy pool to escape the pursuing mammoth, whose "hamstring" he had failed to sever.

Red hair now indicates a determined clinging to ancient peculiarities, and that is a sign of strength, mental, physical and emotional, in men and women.

Thomas Jefferson had red hair; you would be proud to adopt a little Thomas Jefferson. The ablest Jews often have red or red-dish hair; they are people of strong character, clinging to old-fashioned power also.

Red hair means FORCE of some kind. Don't hesitate to adopt it, be proud of it if you have it.

This Country TALKS Well

Other Countries DO the Things About Which We Talk. Some Other Things

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

When coal and power were scarce and dear, Washington, capital of the nation, talked about the huge power that goes to waste in the Potomac where every national representative can see it. But nothing is done. That river would supply heat, light and power worth many millions a year, and the National Government OUGHT to set the good example. But corporations exploiting the voteless inhabitants of the District of Columbia object, and that SETTLES it.

Georgia, one of the most energetic States of the nation, gigantically rich in natural resources, loses every year in her rivers a water power equivalent to at least TWENTY-EIGHT MILLION TONS OF COAL. The citizens and the press urge action to utilize this power, but nothing happens. The same situation is duplicated in dozens of other States. Nothing is done until private selfishness seizes the power and exploits it on the basis of the highest price for coal. The people have shown no ability to control their government or use their national resources for the national benefit.

Go east on your map as far as "darkest, Bolshevik-ridden Petrograd" and you find them bringing all the way from the waterfalls of Finland water power transformed into electric current that will do each year the work of three million tons of coal.

And in Iceland you find water power developed in the most thorough manner, supplying power all the year round, although less in Winter, and that in spite of the extreme cold.

The force that runs to waste under the noses of "intelligent American Congressmen" is utilized in far-off Iceland. Soon, in Brazil, there will be developed a water power exceeding that of Niagara.

In America we TALK well.

But, let us cheer up, not all is gloom.

Human beings, dying so rapidly, working such a short time, are like little creatures that build the coral islands, working below the water, each knowing nothing of what the other does.

Give half a minute's thought today to the work of Samuel A. Carlson, Mayor of Jamestown, New York. His salary, fifteen hundred dollars a year.

For fifteen years he worked for municipal ownership—telling citizens that they ought to own their own property and get the benefit of it, instead of letting somebody own it for them and exploit them.

Having worked for municipal ownership, not for corporations, you may be quite sure that the gentleman's earnings were strictly limited to fifteen hundred dollars a year.

This individual fighter for the public interest succeeded in establishing municipal ownership of an electric light plant, water works, markets and a pig farm.

He next employed experts in the establishment of a municipal milk plant—to produce the milk as well as pasteurize it and deliver it.

Mayor Carlson also found time to fight and try to regulate the Pennsylvania National Gas Company that questioned the right of New York State to regulate it, or its prices, in any way.

Simultaneously Mayor Carlson worked to solve the Winter coal problems for his citizens.

And at least ninety-nine millions of Americans never heard of him. If he had stolen a few millions "legally" everybody would know him.

You owe this information to Mr. Pryde, municipal reporter for Edward L. Allen's Jamestown Morning Post. He sent in the facts above.

Nathan Hale, American patriot, hanged by the British as a spy, said:

"I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Major John Andre, British patriot, hanged by the Americans as a spy, asked if he had anything to say, replied:

"Nothing but to request you to witness to the world that I die like a brave man."

An enthusiastic young woman said Major Andre's last words were much the finer. An old man with white hair and little of it said, "No." What do you say?

Assuming that both men were sincere and not posing, Nathan Hale, the American, had, in our opinion, the nobler thought.

Nathan Hale's last words show that he was thinking about his COUNTRY.

Major Andre's last words, that he was thinking of what the world would say about him.

What do YOU think? Which had the nobler last thought?

More Truth Than Poetry

Lines to Celebrities

By S. E. KISER

Babe Ruth:

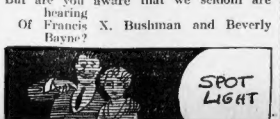
ALL the world's eager to boost you at present,
Fortune and favors are flung in your lap;
Every home run makes your pathway more pleasant—
Glory be to you! Go to it, old chap.
Take all that's coming while still the whole city
Is trying its best to extend your renown;
Remember that people forget to have pity
For the man who was up when they find that he's down.

William J. Bryan:

DOUBTLESS you're thinking that you have been cheated,
But you ought to remember the fun you have had;
Luck has been with you, though often defeated—
You have many good reasons, old man, to be glad.
Here you are, still claiming people's attention;
If you ever had won you'd be out of the way.
Woodrow will hardly boss any convention
Or thrill the Chautauquas four years from today.

Douglas and Mary:

HAVING decided to journey together,
Maybe you'll find that the pathway is fair,
But you'd better not fail to prepare for rough weather—
The public soon wearies of people who pair.
Perhaps you were right to refuse to be fearing
The fate that has caused other stars to complain,
But are you aware that we seldom are hearing
Of Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne?



Letters to the Editor

Save the Forests

Editor Boston American:

The river that runs by my Summer home in Tamworth, N. H., is drying up, and I ask the aid of the Boston American to prevent such a disaster. You may be amused at such a request, but the cause for the shrinking of the stream is as vital to the American as it is to me. One hundred million feet of spruce lumber are being mowed like grass by the lumberman's ax, and we were told that when the spruce is cleaned from Black and Flat Mountains, the hardwood will fall victim to the general campaign of destruction.

Now, where does the American come in? The superintendent of this colossal lumbering proposition declares that when his work of getting out the spruce logs is completed there will probably be no spruce forest left in New England. As you know well, no other timber can take the place of spruce for paper making. Four of these trees represent a ton of paper, or about two such rolls as go on your press. The complete disappearance of spruce means no more white paper as it is made today.

We cannot blame a lumber company for securing lumber when there is such a cry for houses, but I understand that much is being shipped out of the country. This is surely a matter for the public to discuss and decide what shall be done.

The defeat of Representative Volstead in the Minnesota primaries would be more cheering to the thirsty if the man who defeated him were not a dyed-in-the-wool prohibitionist.

The contract of throwing Mr. Bryan out of the Democratic party has been frequently undertaken and never achieved. Attempting it, however, is always an entertaining sport.

My coat begins to shine, for it is serving through its second year;
But do I worry? Not a bit.
I leave that for the profiteer.

WE SPENT the Fourth.
JUST FOUR miles away.
FROM THE McADOO home
AND AFTER dinner.
WE WERE resting comfortably.
IN EASY chairs.
ON A broad verandah.
UNTIL SOME one mentioned
THE McADOO home.
AND I suggested.
THAT WE get the car.
AND GO in search.
OF THIS McADOO place.
AND POINTED out.
THAT IT might prove.
AN HISTORIC spot.
AND SO we did.
AND SOMEWHERE near,
WHERE SOMEBODY said,
WAS THE McADOO house.
WE FOUND a road.
AND A man who said.
IF WE'D follow that road.
WE'D FIND the house.
AND WE followed it.
AND SUDDENLY.
WE HAD the choice.
OF A very sharp turn.
OR STRAIGHT ahead.
AND WE went straight.
AND CAME to a halt.
AND WE asked a lady,
ON A croquet court.
IF THE road went through.
AND SHE said it didn't.
AND WHEN she answered.
WE ALL of us saw.
THAT SHE was the lady.
OF THE house we sought.
AND I felt very foolish.
AND TRIED to back out.
AND JUST at that moment.
A CAR came in.
WITH WILLIAM Gibbs McAdoo.
SITTING AT the wheel.
AND HE had to back out.
TO LET us out.
AND THE very next day.
OUT IN San Francisco.
THEY NOMINATED Cox.
AND SPOILED our story.

I THANK you

THIRD PARTY'S PLATFORM

(Adopted at a mass meeting of the American Constitutional Party, by delegates representing the Eastern States, who assembled for that purpose, at Arlington Hall, New York City, on Friday night, July 2, 1920.)

"We believe the greater ills of government can be cured by adopting the following set of principles:

"Nominate for the presidency by direct nomination and elect by popular vote.

"Elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.

"Deprive the President of the power of patronage; put all public offices, as nearly as possible, under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.

"Elect Federal judges, including the Supreme Court justices of the United States, by popular vote.

"Apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national, State and city matters.

"As the Constitution guarantees to us the right of free speech, a free press and peaceable assembly, we demand that these be immediately restored, and with them all other civil rights and liberties guaranteed by the American Constitution.

"Believing that the hateful Espionage and Sedition Acts, which might have been necessary, to a limited extent, during an actual period of war, are now not only unnecessary, but tyrannical and subversive of all democratic principles, we demand their immediate repeal.

"We oppose the so-called League of Nations, because we believe it to be a menace to the peace of the world, and the treaty drawn at Versailles a violation of all the pledges made to the world, and a betrayal of the honor of this nation. This treaty would make us co-criminals in the ruthless enslavement of Egypt, India, China and the present indefensible position of England as an invader in Ireland.

"We are opposed to the use of injunctions in labor disputes, as well as the use of injunctions in defeating the will of the citizens in disputes between municipalities and public service corporations. We view with great distrust the apparent alliance which seems to be growing up between the Federal courts and the representatives of corporate greed throughout the land.

"We favor the repeal of the present railroad law, known as the Esch-Cummins Bill, as well as the enactment of any future laws, by which the people are forced to guarantee railroad profit while such railroads are privately owned, and we, here and now, put ourselves on record as favoring, unreservedly, public ownership of railroads, stockyard terminals, monopolistic packing plants, coal mines, telegraphs and telephones, and all other monopolies and natural resources the private ownership of which is the basis of private monopoly.

"We reiterate the demand made by William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst newspapers, throughout the nation, for a suitable bonus to be paid to the soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the late war. We regard six months' extra pay as only a just and small recompense, and the same is not to be regarded in any way in the light of charity. We take this opportunity of congratulating William Randolph Hearst and his great chain of newspapers, with their 15,000,000 daily readers, upon the sturdy fight which he has made for our soldiers, sailors and marines who served their country in time of peril.

"We reaffirm our declaration for the establishment of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall. The right of the people to initiate legislation will give them measures of relief which corrupt corporation-controlled Legislatures withhold from them. The Referendum will compel such corrupt Legislatures to refer to the people all measures which do not work for the benefit of the people, and by Referendum vote such measures will be killed. The right of Recall will enable the people, at any time, to remove from public office any public servant who betrays his oath of office. These three measures—the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall—it will be seen, thus insure the people against the acts of all unfaithful servants in office, and should be made a part of our basic law.

"We believe there is a widespread sentiment throughout the land for a Referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment, and we favor such referendum.

"We believe such a platform as this embraces principles which all liberty-loving Americans can heartily subscribe to, and we believe it is possible for our party, in convention assembled, to name a candidate for President whose public record and public utterances will accord, in every way, with these principles and constitute him the ideal man to lead this fight."

KEEPING UP APPEARANCES IN THE HOME

Note the effect this will have on your entire family and compare it with the condition which exists in your home when you go in with a frown and a grunt instead of words of welcome to the members of your household.

And, wives, do not meet your husband at the door with your hair twisted into an unbecoming knot, wearing a soiled gown or one in sore need of repair.

Look clean and crisp and bright and have dinner ready at the regular time.

Too many families lose pride in their personal appearance.

There is too much of the "what's-the-use" spirit.

Too many men are gruff and generally careless in speech and actions and there is not enough fairness on both sides.

Marriage should not be the end of happiness.

Marriage should not be the end of self-pride, nor should interest cease there.

Too many consider married life as an existence merely when it should be a delightful companionship, more congenial because selective, and where both are striving for high ideals, greater ambitions with deeper feeling and mutual consideration there is genuine happiness—the kind that lasts.
